HUNT WILL OF SLAIN TOYMAKER

HENNIKER, N. H., June 3.—A crisis in the investigation of the mysterious slaying of Howard W. Peaslee, the wealthy toymaker, is expected today when the safe containing the dead man's papers and personal property is opened in the toy shop on the bank of the Contoocook River, a short distance from the scene of the tragedy.

The authorities are seeking a will believed to have been left by Peaslee. The will is thought to be in the safe, and the document, if found, is expected to have an important bearing on further developments in the case.

Since the dropping of jealousy as the motive for the crime, the State has been investigating the finances of the victim and the prosecution is looking to the will to furnish a clew to the slayer. The combination of the safe was lost, and Morrison Peaslee, elder son of the slain man, who has been appointed administrator of the estate, obtained the consent of Peaslee's widow, brothers and sisters, and wrote to the makers of the safe at Boston for the key to the combination.

WOMAN ENTERS CASE.

Three separate investigations are under way today, besides that of the State, which is attempting to strengthen its case against "Silent Gene" Wood, the man under arrest, charged with the slaying. The Peaslee family has engaged A. H. Bar-

Lynn Man Tries to Die on Mother's Grave, But Fails

Peter Gallagher went to his mother's grave in Lynn today, lay down upon it, and four times pulled the trigger of a revolver held to his temple.

Three cartridges missed fire. The fourth inflicted a dangerous wound but Gallagher was conscious later at the Lynn Hospital.

Gallagher is thirty-five and married, and lives with his wife at No. 73 Holyoke street, Lynn. His mother died in March, 1913. For a year he has been despondent over his mother's death, and often spent hours in the cemetery.

Employees heard the shot today and took him to the hospital. He said: "I'm a darned poor shot. Too bad I didn't finish the job." He is employed by the General Electric Company.

"Sinkers and Coffee" for New York Mayor

CHICAGO, June 3.—Mayor Mitchel of New York, on a hurry trip through here to inspect vocational schools at Gary, had so short a time to make connections that he and his party breakfasted on "sinkers and coffee" in the station lunch room.

There were none except newspaper men to greet them, though the party said its coming was announced to Mayor Harrison a month ago.

Mayor Mitchel and his party went on to Gary without receiving an official greeting from Chicago, and they returned to the city late this afternoon with no official recognition except that two plain clothes police officials were detailed to see that the chief executive of the country's largest city came to no harm.

Moseley Stricken at City Hall Desk

Randall P. Moseley, employed by the city as deputy collector, was stricken today with a severe attack of acute indigestion while at work in his office at the City Hall. After receiving medical aid he was removed to his home.

Finding Successful Salespeople

That sounds like a hard task, but it really is only a matter of knowing where to look.

Bright, ambitious people with the selling instinct well developed can be counted among the constant readers of Boston American "Want Ads."

You can easily reach them through this channel. At the same time, don't neglect to read the "Situations Wanted" ads.

For progressive salespeople appreciate advertising's value and often advertise themselves.

Meanwhile, just put on paper the requirements of the position you have to offer and leave it with any of the American's "Want Ad" Stations, the branch office at 264 Washington Street, main office at 80 Summer Street, or

DIRECTOR SHIELDS MORGAN

WASHINGTON, June 3.—James S. Elton, one of the directors of the New Haven, was the first witness called when the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation into the New Haven road was resumed today.

Elton said he was seventy-six years of age and a manufacturer until he got too old. He was now a banker and a director in the New Haven road.

Ex-Governor Folk plunged directly into the question of the Westchester deal, asking the witness if he was present when Morgan, Rockefeller and Mellen reported to the board of directors that they had spent $11,000,000 on the Westchester enterprise. Elton said that he had been present when this occurred.

Q.—What was your opinion of the deal? A.—I considered it an extravagance.

Q.—Do you know what the Westchester was worth at that time? A.—Not exactly; no.

Q.—It was not a real railroad, was it? A.—No, I don't believe it was.

Q.—Were you surprised at this extravagance? A.—Yes, I was.

Q.—What did you do? A.—Nothing.

Q.—Why not? A.—Because I had implicit confidence in the business ability of Messrs. Rockefeller, Morgan and Miller, and if they said it was a good thing to do I did not think it was up to me to question it.

Q.—Who was the dominant figure in the board of directors of the New Haven?

The witness hesitated for a moment and then answered:

"Mr. Mellen."

Folk seemed surprised at this reply and asked if Elton did not mean to say "Morgan."

"I did not," answered the witness. "Mr. Morgan had tremendous influence it is true, but I think Mr. Mellen was the dominating spirit of the board."

Q.—Do you remember any specific instance where a proposition broached by Mr. Morgan was opposed by the directors? A.—Not any specific instance, no.

CRITICISED MORGAN.

Q.—Did the directors later express their disapproval of the deals broached by Mr. Morgan? A.—They sometimes did.

Q.—When Mr. Morgan had left the room did the directors express disapproval which they had been afraid to express when he was there? A.—I would not say that they were afraid to express this disapproval.

Q.—But they didn't do so when Mr. Morgan was there? A.—No, they didn't.

Q.—Would you sit quietly by again and allow the Westchester deal to be put over? A.—No, I don't think I would.

Q.—Why not? A.—Because I have had more experience now.

Elton said that Morgan made no explanation of the expenditure of $11,000,000 in connection with the Rhode Island trolleys.

Folk pointed out to the witness that the New Haven had spent $36,000,000 on the Westchester and that it had been operated at a loss. Elton replied that it was expected it would be operated at a loss at first.

General Villa as he looks today. This snapshot was taken at Saltillo by Gerald Brandon, the Boston AMERICAN'S war correspondent at the front with the main army of the Constitutionalists.

DICTATOR BRANDED "MENACE TO MEXICO"

TORREON, June 3.—The final, open break between Huerta and Minister of War Blanquet has occurred, according to news received by the Constitutionalist officers here. They tell how Blanquet flouted Huerta in a public restaurant, told him to his face he was a "menace to Mexico," and dared him to deny or resent the accusation.

The Constitutionalists say Huerta would order Blanquet's execution at once did he not fear reprisals from the friends of the War Minister.

According to the report that reached here, the break between Blanquet and Huerta came after Blanquet had ordered the evacuation of Saltillo. Huerta did not know Saltillo had been abandoned till several hours afterward. He sent for Blanquet, but his messenger failed to locate the War Minister.

That evening Huerta and three friends entered a restaurant, to find Blanquet seated at a table there with several of his friends. Huerta strode impetuously forward and demanaded:

"General Blanquet, will you please explain why you ordered the evacuation of Saltillo?"

"I gave the order," Blanquet replied, "because I am head of the war department and had a right to give it. Under the constitution I am commander-in-chief of the army of Mexico."

"It seems you do not know Victoriano Huerta," the President retorted.

"Yes, I do," replied Blanquet, "General Huerta is the menace of Mexico."

Huerta turned and walked away without a word.

RESOLUTE GETS OFF IN FRONT

GREENWICH, Ct., June 3.—The Herreshoff yacht Resolute got away in the lead today in her second race with the Cochran boat Vanitie. A six-mile wind carried the two cup candidates across the line near Great Captain's Island. The Resolute crossed the line at 12:04 and the Vanitie at 12:17. The course was a thirty-mile triangle.

By HARRY C. THOMAS.

GREENWICH, Ct., June 3.—At 11 o'clock this morning, an hour before the start of the second race between the Vanitie and the Resolute, a southwester of the smoky variety sprung up on the Sound. It is blowing about twelve miles an hour, and, if it holds true, there will be a race worth seeing.

A haze hangs over the Sound, making observation poor, and the start may be delayed on that account.

The course from present indications will be a triangle of thirty miles, two times around with five-mile legs. The start will be off Parsonage Point, near Rye, and the first leg to windward.

The Vanitie and the Resolute are out tuning up, and both "Charlie" Adams of the Resolute and "Bill" Denuis of the Vanitie are out for blood today. Nat Herreshoff will be aboard the Resolute today, and will have a hand in sailing this latest boat of his design.

HUERTA SPARES LIVES OF STUDENTS WHO TRIED TO KILL HIM

By THOMAS P. COATES.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

VERA CRUZ, June 3.—It was learned today that President Huerta had spared the lives of the students of the Agricultural College at Tacuba, who recently attempted to assassinate him.

He decided that they were too young to be shot and ordered that they be confined in Santiago prison to prevent their making another attempt on his life.

According to the story told by Huerta to his friends, he had a narrow escape from death, two bullets having struck one top of the automobile in which he was riding.

DICTATOR IS NOW ENGAGED ON ALL SIDES BY REBELS

By LUIGI BARZINI.
Correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph and Boston American.

MEXICO CITY, June 3 (via Vera Cruz).—Recent events show why the Constitutionalists refused an armistice. They wanted to profit by the weakness of the Huerta government and place themselves in a more favorable position to dictate terms.

This they have certainly succeeded in doing. After taking Tampico they advanced all along the Atlantic

Montana Man, 70, Weds His Niece

John Hill Leyson, seventy, of Butte, Montana, and Grace Weston Lunt of Boston were married this afternoon at the home of Dr. Henry D. Lloyd at No. 27 Grove Hill avenue, Newtonville. Twenty years ago, when she was twenty-two, Leyson met Miss Lunt and adopted her as his niece. For twenty years they corresponded, and at last he proposed by mail and was accepted. They will go abroad on their honeymoon, and live in Butte. Mr. Leyson is a Civil War veteran and lost a leg at Fredericksburg.

Death Takes Wife of C. O'Connell Galvin

Friends were shocked today to hear of the death of Mrs. Annie L. (Quinn) Galvin, wife of C. O'Connell Galvin, of the editorial staff of the Boston AMERICAN, at her home on Winthrop street, Winthrop. She was formerly of Worcester, where she enjoyed a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Besides her husband, she leaves three daughter, Mary, Margaret and Anna.

Arrangements for the funeral will be announced later.

OWNERS OF STORSTAD SUE CANADIAN RAILWAY.

MONTREAL, June 3.—Owners of the collier Storstad today brought claim for $40,000 damages against the Canadian Pacific Railway as a result of the collier's collision with the Empress of Ireland. The claim alleges that the Empire was at fault in the collision and that there was negligence in navigation. This action is a reply to the $2,000,000 claim filed by the Canadian Pacific against the Storstad.

MILITANT FELLS ART ATTENDANT WITH HATCHET

LONDON, June 3.—An attendant in the Dore Art Galleries, in New Bond street, was probably mortally injured today while trying to prevent a militant from smashing pictures which were on exhibition.

The woman struck the attendant over the head with the sharp edge of a hatchet, and he was rushed away to the nearest hospital in an unconscious condition. The woman, who was emulating her fellow-picture smashers in the Royal Academy and National Gallery, ruined an oil sketch by Bartolozzi and a water color landscape by John Hapland.

While she was wielding her hatchet an attendant ran up and tried to grab her arm. The woman brought her weapon down with a crashing blow upon the man's skull. Several other attendants and a few spectators rushed up and surrounded the Amazon. Screaming and struggling with maniacal strength, she was carried bodily to the street, where a policeman took her in charge.

HATCHET AS EVIDENCE.

The hatchet which the woman wielded was seized by the police to be used as evidence against her if her victim dies.

The value of the ruined pictures was placed at $500. At the police station when the woman was searched a letter was found upon her, one paragraph of which read: "The suffragettes have become desperate. Every woman in our ranks is now willing, even anxious, to lay down her life for the cause."

The Dore galleries incident was the first occasion in which suffragettes have attacked men with murderous intent.

Two newspaper editors were assaulted in Belfast, Ireland, by suffragettes today, and one newspaper office was wrecked. The women first visited the editorial offices of the Belfast Telegraph. They pounced upon the managing editor of the paper, knocking him to the floor, where they kicked and beat him. All the furniture in the room was smashed and the windows were broken.

The women then went to the offices of the News-Letter.

EDITOR BADLY MAULED.

The managing editor of this paper was so badly mauled that he was carried unconscious to a hospital, where he lies at present.

Hurling abuse at the magistrate and swelling the police and government, the two "wild women" arrested outside the main gate of Buckingham Palace yesterday were arraigned in Bow Street Police Court today, charged with disorderly conduct. Both were so violent and kept up such a stream of shouted interjections that it was difficult to hear anything in the courtroom.

Fines of $10 each with the alternative of spending a month in jail were imposed. Both women cried out that they would go to jail and hunger-strike.

The prisoners gave the names of "Miss Slater" and "Miss Pratt."

WAR ON POLICE.

The militant suffragettes opened a personal campaign against the police today.

Two policemen stationed outside of Hellowgy' jail were attacked by two militants and both beaten. The Women's Social and Political Union always keeps pickets in front of the jail when prominent members of that organization are incarcerated there, so the policemen paid no attention to the suffragettes as they approached.

Senator Fletcher Beaten by Stockton; Tolls Bill the Issue

JACKSONVILLE, June 3.—Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, the Wilson administration candidate, seems today to have been beaten in the primaries for United States Senator. He adopted President Wilson's policy on the Panama Canal tolls and has had the endorsement and support of the President in his fight. His opponent is John N. C. Stockton.

The result is very close and the full vote will not be canvassed and reported before tonight or Thursday, but in the returns received up to late Stockton is leading Fletcher by a good margin.

Until the Panama tolls fight became hot the renomination of Senator Fletcher was considered certain.

7 After Dartmouth Achievement Prize

HANOVER, N. H., June 3.—Seven candidates for the cup presented by John Barrett as a prize for "all around achievement" have been selected. The three upper classes will vote to decide who of the seven is entitled to the honor. The candidates are J. T. Reardon, R. H. Trott, J. L. Day, R. N. Hoggett, H. A. Kreisch, Jr., L. K. Little and P. W. London, all of whom have been prominent in studies, athletics and class organizations.

G. T. Marye Slated for French Post

WASHINGTON, June 3.—George T. Marye, of San Francisco, will be appointed Ambassador to France at an early date, according to information obtained from a Senator close to the administration. Mr. Marye's name has been urged on the President by many prominent persons, including Senators James, Swanson and Hughes and the entire California delegation.

Hold Suspect in Downtown Holdup

Francis L. Donigan, steward on the steamer Dorchester of the Merchants & Miners' line, was held up on lower Tremont street early today by three men and robbed of $12.50. Patrolman Fox captured Stefano Asanti, eighteen, of No. 548 Hanover street, as a suspect. No money was found on him.

ONE MINUTE FROM NORTH STATION

MADRID, June 3.—Kermit Roosevelt, who arrived here some days ago, is staying with Ambassador Joseph Willard, whose daughter he is to marry June 11.

The young couple spend much time together sightseeing and paying visits to places of interest nearby almost daily.

Miss Willard hardly recognized her explorer fiance when he arrived. His absence in the Brazilian wilderness added several years in appearance to his age, to say nothing of a new moustache and a good coat of tan on his face.

The police are anxious for the safety of Colonel Roosevelt, who is expected here in a few days to attend the wedding. They have received information that a Spanish-American anarchist who had followed the Colonel before the latter's trip to Brazil had got on his trail again when the ex-President returned to New York a short time ago.

The anarchist community at Barcelona is being closely watched and the number of detectives at the various ports and on the frontier has been doubled.

The other guests, including Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Straus of New York are beginning to arrive.

Owing to the wish of the young couple, especially Kermit, the wedding will be as quiet as possible, but the preparations already well in hand insure a brilliant function.

Teacher's Father Raps Gianini Verdict

AUBURN, N. Y., June 3.—The Rev. W. A. Beecher, father of Lydia Beecher, for whose murder Jean Gianini was sent to Matteawan, in a statement calls the recent trial "The farce of Herkimer." "How long will courts pervert justice and make law a mockery?" he says. "How long will smart lawyers sell themselves for money or glory to defend the violators of the very laws they are sworn to maintain?"

'WOMEN GOING PACE TOO FAST,' SAYS JOHNSON

CHICAGO, June 3.—Women of today are traveling the pace so fast that they are becoming agnostic, and the church pews of the next generation will be filled entirely by men according to Owen Johnson, who is visiting in this city. He also declares that woman's yearning for excitement is causing her to revolt socially, industrially and morally, and that she is destined to throw all conventions to the winds ere long.

"Men have long since slipped out from under the influence of the church," Mr. Johnson said. "The women are now assuming the same attitude. They are becoming agnostic. They have ceased to stand in awe and fear of the church.

"The trouble is that women are going too fast. The men are going to stop the women if they are stopped. We men are going to see that it will be necessary for us to get back under the mantle of religious faith. We are going to see the need of setting an example for our wives and daughters. I predict that the next generation will see the men closer to the church than they are now, and that the women will be just that much further away."

Three Battleship Plan Passes Senate

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Senate has passed the naval appropriation bill carrying about $141,000,000, providing for the administration two-battleship construction program, and authorizing, in addition, the building of a third dreadnought with money to be derived from the sale of the battleships Idaho and Mississippi.

HOE PUNISHED SUFFICIENTLY SAYS LAWYER

NEW YORK, June 3.—"No greater service is being done in this city today than that which is being done by Arthur I. Hoe. He suffered for years from blackmailers, but he comes here today and submits his case to the courts of the land and asks for their protection."

This was the keynote in the summing up of William H. Hamilton, counsel for Hoe, son of the millionaire printing press manufacturer, before Justice Gavegan and a Supreme Court Jury. He was reviewing for his client the testimony in Mae Sullivan's suit for $225,000 damages for breach of promise.

Mirabeau L. Towns, counsel for Miss Sullivan, quoted the classics to show his client was a mere child in short dresses and with curls down her back, fresh from the salt air of Shelter Island when she met Hoe in this city. He called her a "jewel of virtue." Hoe he painted as a deep-dyed villain.

"Hoe wanted this dainty girl fed on the richest viands and spices," shouted the lawyer "to fatten her for the slaughter—to reach for her with his satyr hands when she returned."

CHARGE JURY TODAY.

The testimony was largely rebuttal of that which has been offered by Hoe's witnesses during the last two days of the trial. Miss Sullivan went on the witness stand to deny some of the things Hoe and Mrs. Campion had stated. Her maids reiterated statements to show Hoe had been in error in some of his testimony. Justice Gavegan will charge the jury today.

Mr. Hamilton, in his address to the jury, said Hoe had been victimized in the extent of $50,000 by blackmailers.

"You may search the pages of history and you will not find another instance of a proposal of marriage having been made in the presence of a third party," continued the attorney. "You didn't propose to your wife that way. Nobody else did. Yet Miss Sullivan says Hoe proposed in the presence of Dorothy Brannigan.

"Don't be carried away by references to her short dresses and curls, gentleman. She had been working in a store and had been a telephone operator. She had supplemented her education by being in and around New York. I venture to say she knew as much as a woman of twenty-five, she lived a life of lies.

"HOE TREASURY RAIDED."

"The Hoe treasury was raided for years. This suit is nothing but another raid. But I have no fear that they will get away with this raid in a court of justice. We are washing this linen in public, but let us wash it clean.

"Hoe may have been full of deviltry. Ho may have been full of philanthropy. He may have been lonesome when he met the plaintiff for the first time. Men do foolish things, sometimes, with women. I leave it to you, gentlemen of the jury, to say whether this defendant has not been punished enough."

WHITNEY AND BRIDE TO MAKE TRIP ABROAD

Many Boston people and a big array of notable guests attended the wedding at Westbury, L. I., of Miss Martha B. Bacon and George W. Whitney, formerly of Boston.

Miss Bacon—now Mrs. Whitney—is the daughter of Robert Bacon, a former Ambassador to France and now a Fellow of the Harvard College Corporation.

The guests at the church ceremony were limited, but 600 attended a reception at the house that followed. Guests came and went by special train, some later as ng the English team at polo at the Piping Rock Club. When the bride and groom departed old shoes, rice and ribbons adorned their motor, and the bride's pet dog with a collar of lilies of the valley went along. They will make a motor trip and then go to Europe.

The bride, who entered the church with her father, wore a gown of white satin trimmed with old point lace. Her veil was draped in "Watteau" effect and was arranged with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride's attendants were the Misses Molly Martin, Josephine Osborn and Eleanor Roelker, of this city; Eleanor Greene, of Buffalo; Julia Lewis and Eliza Fox, of Philadelphia.

Richard Whitney was his brother's best man. The ushers were Elliot C. Bacon, a brother of the bride; Francis R. Appleton, Jr.; Harrison Tweed, Harold S. Vanderbilt, Clarence Hay, F. Skiddy von Stade, Francis Sargeant, Dudley Pickman, Elliot Farley and J. J. Higginson.

The Rev. Richard D. Pope, rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. Endicott Peabody, of Groton Academy, performed the ceremony.

Among the guests were the French Ambassador, M. Jules Jusserand, and Mme. Jusserand; Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, Mrs. George Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick O. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stopped Night Sweats and Banished Cough

If you are suffering with a continued cough, cold or Lung Trouble which does not yield to any treatment, it might be of the greatest value to you to investigate what Eckman's Alterative, a medicine for the Throat and Lungs, has accomplished for many similar sufferers. Many who have investigated and used it have voluntarily declared that it was the means of saving their lives. Read this case:—

"Gentlemen:—For four years I was troubled with a cough, which gradually became worse. I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my disease Lung Trouble. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital. They also confirmed my trouble, and I was ordered away for treatment. As the latter would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in my chest suffered, cough became less and rarer, force left me, and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now, and have been for twelve years."

WALSH VETO ON 3 BILLS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

Governor Walsh today sent to the Legislature vetoes on three measures which carried appropriations totalling $170,450. The bills vetoed provided new buildings and improvements at the Industrial School for Boys, at the Lyman School for Boys and at the Medfield State Hospital.

Two of these bills are vetoed, the Governor says, because he does not approve of particular items of the appropriations they carry, and he says: "The form of these bills emphasizes the necessity pointed out in my inaugural address that a constitutional provision should be made giving the Governor the power to veto specific items in an appropriation bill."

He further urges a decrease in expenditures at the correctionary institutions of the State, and says: "I believe that the Commonwealth can be relieved of a substantial financial burden if the probation system is more widely used and extended." He declares many terms of detention could be shortened, and probation substituted, with advantage to the State.

The Governor also urges that in making these appropriations the whole field of State institutions should be studied, with a view to economy wherever possible, and advocates a centralization of administration and expenditure.

ADELE RITCHIE IS BITTER AGAINST HER HUSBAND OF A YEAR

Adele Ritchie, comic opera star, who hints at legal action against her husband, Charles Nelson Bell, from whom she's separated, and to whom she was married only a year ago.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The arrest of Tony Sylvester, chauffeur for Adele Ritchie, comic star, led to the announcement that she and her husband, Charles Nelson Bell, are separated. They were married on June 12, 1913. Miss Ritchie intimates she will begin a legal action.

The chauffeur was accused of stealing Mr. Bell's automobile. When Sylvester explained in court that he had been instructed by Miss Ritchie to take the car he was released.

"I suppose Mr. Bell was going to act like a gentleman in this matter," said Miss Ritchie. He seems to think it was his car, but it is just as much my car as it is his.

"Since Mr. Bell has seen fit to act in this manner you might as well know we are separated. No papers have been served, but I expect to settle this matter within a few days. My patience is at an end."

Cambridge Bank and Sheriff Sued

Two suits, each for $38,000, have been filed against the Lechmeere National Bank of East Cambridge and Sheriff John R. Fairbairn of Middlesex County. The suits were filed by Middlesex County through District Attorney Corcoran.

It is alleged that the bank, beginning January 1, 1902, to March 31, 1913, carelessly and negligently paid out to certain persons, unknown to the county, certain sums of money. It is claimed that the bank owes, by payment of these sums, $76,151.46. Against Sheriff Fairbairn the allegations are that he negligently and carelessly failed to perform his duties relative to these payments. They allege that he owes $36,151.46.

REPORT RATE INCREASE IS TO BE DENIED

CHICAGO, June 3.—The Tribune today published the following from its Washington correspondent:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission will hand down its decision on the 5 per cent. horizontal rate increase shortly after June 15.

"The commissioners are now conferring on the evidence introduced both for and against the increase during the hearings which extended over a period of six months. It is believed the commission will decline the 5 per cent. increase and also all horizontal increases, but will attempt to point out a way for the railroads to put their schedules on a scientific basis. Certain increases in rates will be allowed on commodities which are not remunerative now and no decreases will be made.

"All services costing the roads money must be charged for and all favors must be withdrawn.

"From persons close to the commission it is learned that the commission probably will follow the general outline laid down by Louis D. Brandeis in his brief opposing the 5 per cent. horizontal increase."

PUT SULPHUR ON AN ITCHING SKIN AND END ECZEMA

Says This Old-Time Eczema Remedy Is Applied Like Cold Cream.

Any irritation or breaking out on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur cream, says a noted dermatologist.

He states that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. This is published for Walter Luther Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

JUSTICE LAUDS BOSTON AT B. U. COMMENCEMENT

Justice William R. Riddell of the Supreme Court of Canada, told the graduating classes at the forty-fifth commencement of Boston University, held today in Tremont Temple, that they should be proud of Boston and her part in the past. He thought Canada led in the history of religious freedom and not Boston and Massachusetts.

The throwing of tea into Boston harbor did not start the American Revolution, according to the judge, but were merely a token of outside excrescences.

"Is the Democrat a traitor to business or is the Republican a traitor to the consumer?" asked Judge Riddell. "Is the standpatter a wild-eyed impossible enthusiast? Is the President of the United States a recipient of stolen goods? Is Wilson the nominee of trusts? Is Colonel Roosevelt a self-seeking demagogue who would break up a historic party for his own selfish ambition? Is the Bull Moose nothing but an overgrown bully who thinks of nothing but himself?

"Who are the men and women who will show how these questions should be answered? They should be right here in such a university as this.

"WAR EVEN A DUTY."

"I'm not a peace-at-any-price man, for war, in my views, is unhappily not only right but even a duty. The standing army and navy is a safeguard, like a police force, in the existing state of humanity.

"You are proud of Boston and her past. Your eyes fill with tears, your hearts with proud exaltation, when you think of Bunker Hill. I, too, am proud of you, and as deeply grateful as you can be to the farmers who were willing to give all for freedom and self-government.

Canada thankfully acknowledges the leadership of Boston in civil freedom. Nevertheless, I say with some pride that it was not Boston or Massachusetts, which led in the cause of religious freedom. Your Pilgrim fathers were not content to worship God in their own way. They wanted to make all others follow their method. We must go to Canada to find the first English-speaking country to allow complete freedom of religion. Canada was the first to allow a Roman Catholic to take part in the legislation and to be a free man in every respect, equal to a Protestant.

"We think Carroll of Carrolton (a Roman Catholic) just as good a patriot as John Hancock or Samuel Adams."

SOME of the girl graduates at Boston University today. They are: (1) Barbara Bolles, (2) Mary Edmands, (3) Mabel Leah Bigney, (4) Dora Schiel, (5) Marjorie Bunker, (6) Inez Kjellstrom.

MRS. CHEEVER STARTS SCOTTI IN BUSINESS

Mrs. Emmeline Cheever plans to start Louis Scotti, her youthful fiance, into the gents' furnishing business in Boston, according to an announcement today. The wedding which was to have taken place last week, has been postponed for several months and meanwhile Scotti will try to overcome the objections of Mrs. Cheever's family by selling shirts and collars.

Mrs. Cheever's intentions to place Scotti in business is to do away with the objections of her relatives to Scotti on the grounds that he is out of a job. She is a woman of wealth and position, and although forty-two years old is determined to wed the young singer, who won her heart at a musicale at the Civic Service House in the North End.

'Big Tim' Sullivan's Old Partner Dead

NEW YORK, June 3.—George J. Kraus, who claimed he made "Big Tim" Sullivan a millionaire through the operations of the theatrical firm of Sullivan & Kraus, is dead at his home, No. 105 East Fifteenth street.

Kraus was an alderman in 1872. He ran the Alhambra, then Volks Garden, and with Sullivan he had the Dewey Theatre, Imperial Music Hall, Circle, Aberle, Gotham and City Theatres. The net profits were $134,000 annually at one time.

Revive Gossip Over Mayflower Revels

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Navy officers were surprised today at the revival of the gossip concerning midnight parties on the President's yacht Mayflower several months ago. Secretary of the Navy Daniels investigated the reports and it was stated that the serving of liquid refreshments at the gatherings, at which women were said to have been present had resulted in "some improprieties." Later Past Assistant Paymaster Edward C. Little resigned and Lieutenant Archibald C. Douglas was transferred from the Mayflower to the Asiatic squadron.

Spanked Wife Says Husband 'Did Right'

NEW YORK, June 3.—"My husband spanked me, but I had disobeyed him and he did right to punish me," said Anna Lapracano, a pretty bride of twenty years, when she appeared in the Court of Special Sessions at Jamaica, L. I., to withdraw a charge of assault against her husband, Louis, of No. 252 Washington street, Jamaica.

W. H. Vanderbilt, Coal Dealer, Dead

NEW YORK, June 3.—William H. Vanderbilt, pioneer coal merchant of Brooklyn, is dead at his home, No. 150 Church street, Freeport, Mr. Vanderbilt had a campaign years ago to force coal merchants to give full weight to their patrons. He was sixty-eight years old.

U. S. Uniforms Made by Child Labor

NEW YORK, June 3.—United States army uniforms are a product of child labor, according to the testimony of Miss Elizabeth C. Watson, an investigator for the State Prison Commission, before the United States Commission on Industrial Relations here. She said the mill producing the uniform material, which is located in Rome, Ga., has children working long hours for low wages.

MOTHER'S PATHETIC STORY OF HOW SUBWAY BABY WAS ABANDONED

A story of infinite pathos, a story of harrowed mother love, a story that makes one wonder whether our civilization is such a proud thing after all, came to light in the police courts today. It is the story of the sad little "Tragedy of the Subway Baby."

You read in the papers about the "Subway Baby," which was found in the turn of the stairs leading up from the Boston end of the Cambridge subway. He was the first baby ever abandoned in "the subway — five months old, plainly dressed, husky, and with a perpetual and all-embracing grin. That grin won the policeman's heart, and won the heart of the nurses at the Charlotte Street Home, whither he was taken.

About the baby's neck was hung a medal, engraved with an imprint of the Virgin and Child, and these words:

"O Virgin Mother, pray for us who have recourse to Thee."

The police duty is to investigate these cases of abandoned babies, so they set out to find this baby's mother. At St. Mary's Hospital, in Dorchester, Special Officer Carey, of Station 2 was told:

"A young woman wanted to leave a baby with us last week, but we refused to accept it. She said her name was Mary Ledwell."

And so the policeman traced Mary A. Ledwell to her room at No. 99 Hyde street, and arrested her, and she was brought into court today.

This was the story the young mother told. She is only twenty-three, slight, dark, with deep eyes of unutterable sorrow. She said:

NOBODY WANTED BABY.

"I am married. My husband is a Malden policeman. We were married last Christmas.

"But before that—alone here in Boston—I had made mistakes. My husband is a good man, and he forgave. 'But,' he said, 'I cannot let you keep the baby. You must send it away.'

"I knew he was right. I could not blame him. But oh, it was terribly hard on me—the baby's mother. Baby was so little, so utterly helpless, so dependent upon me. He could barely lift his little arms without my help. Unless I lifted him he would lie all day, upon his fat little back, kicking his legs, flapping his tiny, ridiculous arms.

"But my husband was right. I must send him away. Yet I dared not send him away unless I knew he would have a good home.

"I come from Nova Scotia, and in my trouble my first thought was of my mother. I went to her, all the way to Nova Scotia.

"She would have nothing to do with me nor with my baby.

"With my baby in my arms I went to other relatives in Socarappa, Me. They listened to my story and sent me away.

"After that, I could only come back to Boston. I knew I must get rid of baby before I went to my husband. I had heard of the charitable organizations—so I went to them.

CHARITY IN NAME ONLY.

"Baby on my shoulder, I tramped the streets from one institution to the next. Everywhere it was the same. They asked questions, pitiless questions—picked my sorrow up to the light with pincers and tortured it till I shrank away or ran from them. They call it charity, but if what I met was charity keep me from its clutches.

"I could not find anyone to care for baby. I had tried everywhere. My money was gone. I had to go home. But I couldn't take baby home.

"Baby was like a great load on my shoulders. I had to be rid of him. There were only two ways—kill him or abandon him.

"You couldn't expect me to kill my own baby, could you?

"So I wrapped him in his blanket, and about his neck hung the little lead medal with its prayer, and kissed it, and watched a chance to abandon it.

"Once I tried, but couldn't leave my sonny. I had laid him down in a doorway—but I came back and picked him up. Finally I came through the subway and realized that here was an ideal place. Baby would be found in no time. Tenderly I laid him down—and left him there.

"As I walked away, not daring to look back, it seemed as though I had torn out my heart and laid it there on the subway stairs."

'No Speeding,' Wilson Warns Auto Drivers

WASHINGTON, June 3.—President Wilson has laid down a hard and fast rule to White House chauffeurs against speeding their machines.

He admonished them to observe the regulations strictly and is said to have made unusual the penalty of disobedience. The President took this action because of the arrest of Chauffeur Jolliner for speeding, a White House automobile at Hyattsville, Md., Monday.

Mayo's Widow to Be Put on Directorates

PLANTSVILLE, Ky., June 3.—It was announced that Mrs. John C. C. Mayo, widow of the Kentucky capitalist who died recently in New York, leaving about $20,000,000, will be elected a director in all the big business companies in which her husband was interested. According to her plans, colleges and churches will be endowed, and many philanthropic movements will engage her attention.

Hotel Dancing Craze Wanes, Say Bonifaces

NEW YORK, June 2.—"The hotel dancing craze is about over, but just what will supplant it is not known yet."

This was the general impression given yesterday by 121 hotel men representing all the important American cities, who returned on the Nieuw Amsterdam from a two months' "idea hunt" in Europe.

"THE SUBWAY BABY," whose mother was driven to abandon him by the "red tape" of professional charity.

Building Strike in Chicago Ended

CHICAGO, June 3.—One hundred and fifty thousand members of the building trades unions who were thrown out of work by the bricklayers' strike nearly three months ago, planned to return to work today following a settlement of the difficulties. The terms on which the settlement was made were those offered three weeks ago and rejected by the bricklayers. Those earning less than forty cents an hour will receive one cent an hour increase while the employers will have full control of the hiring and discharging of workmen.

Arrest 200 Students in Portuguese Plot

LISBON, Portugal, June 3.—Another plot in the long series of Monarchist conspiracies against the Republican government was discovered today at Coimbra, an important educational centre about 100 miles north of this city. Two hundred students in the University of Coimbra, the most famous institution of learning in the Republic, were arrested and soldiers are seeking for others who were in the cabal. The university was founded in 1288.

Fix Place of Siegel Trial.

NEW YORK, June 3.—District Attorney Whitman and John S. Stanchfield will meet today to designate a county for trial of Siegel and Vogel under the change of venue decision.

No Chicago Greeting For Mayor Mitchel

CHICAGO, June 3.—Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York, with a party of New York City and school officials came to Chicago to inspect vocational schools here and at Gary, Ind. There were none except newspaper men to greet them, though the party said its coming was announced to Mayor Harrison a month ago.

Mayor Mitchel and his party went on to Gary without receiving an official greeting from Chicago, and they returned to the city late this afternoon with no official recognition except that two plain clothes police officials were detailed to see that the chief executive of the country's largest city came to no harm.

ENVOYS ANSWER CARRANZA, NOW HOPE FOR PEACE

coast, occupied Tuxpam, and are now pressing on the State of Hidalgo and threatening Pachuca, which is only sixty miles from the capital.

Meanwhile the retirement of the Federal forces of Saltillo upon San Luis Potosi has been rendered necessary by their isolation and has been laid open to the revolutionists without a struggle. The whole of the central region to the north of San Luis Potosi and Zacatecas appears to have fallen.

Not having accepted the armistice, the revolutionists have been easily able to capture vast expanses of territory and are now advancing their front toward the last bulwarks of the government. It seems, however, they cannot make any immediate effort to open a road to the capital because the railroads have been destroyed by the Federals. They also lack ammunition for the final assault.

The palaver now about Constitutionalists joining in mediation is merely to gain time, to get the railroad gaps repaired and to get some ammunition on the way. When this arrives Villa will begin fighting again.

ENVOYS' REPLY TO CARRANZA RENEWS HOPES OF PEACE

By LAURENCE TOD.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

MEDIATION HEADQUARTERS, Clifton, Arizona, Niagara Falls, Ont., June 3.—Hope that the mediation negotiations here might effect peace in Mexico has remained high, after optimism had been almost abandoned. This was due to action taken by the "A-B-C" envoys, who sent to Rafael Zubaran, General Carranza's agent in Washington, a polite reply to the note brought here last week by Senor Urquidi.

The mediators are reported to have suggested in their reply that the demands of the Constitutionalist chief could not be regarded at this time in the absence of an armistice, but assured him that his views might be taken into consideration at a later stage of the negotiations.

The reported assurance in the note was regarded as a triumph for the American delegates in their efforts to make the negotiations a clearing house for the exchange of views of all factions.

The mediation ship has not passed the dangerous shoals, however. Close observers pointed out today that the following line in the statement issued last night by the Mexican delegates was most significant:

"General Huerta is prepared to withdraw from the government on condition that at the time of his withdrawal Mexico shall be politically pacified and the government succeeding his shall be such as to count on the acquiescence of the governed and the support of public opinion."

This intimates that Huerta now requires the United States to command the Constitutionalist to accept a government which shall meet his ideas of the demands of public opinion. This, in view of the Constitutionalists' refusal to compromise with Huerta means that he will stay on until the last battle between the Federals and Constitutionalists shall have been decided.

Despite this the mediators and the American and Mexican delegates will proceed with their plans of settlement. While an agreement is being arranged on the lesser points the mediators hope that President Wilson will be able to persuade Carranza to order a truce.

GERMANS ANGRY AT FINES AGAINST SHIPS WHICH BROUGHT ARMS

MEXICO CITY, June 3.—Excitement is seething in the German colony because of the action of the American customs officials at Vera Cruz in assessing immense fines against the steamers Ypiranga and Bavaria for landing their cargoes at Puerto Mexico. No attempt is made to conceal the bitterness the German residents feel toward Americans.

A remarkable demonstration took place at the German Club last night, when confirmation of earlier reports of the fixing of heavy fines was received. The younger members of the club cheered for Huerta and the Mexican government. The memorable clash between Admiral Dewey and the German naval commander at Manila were recalled, and hoots for Dewey were coupled with the shouts of "Viva Mexico." The older members attempted in vain to curb their younger associates, and finally the club's secretary announced that further demonstrations would be punished by expulsion.

The government announced today that the rebels operating in the State of Vera Cruz under the leadership of Antonio Delgado had surrendered to Federal forces.

The Senate has passed the bill dividing Chihuahua into three parts—a State and two Federal territories—and making the State of Morelos a Federal territory. This action as to Chihuahua is unique in view of the fact that the Constitutionalists are in complete control there.

Action on the oil concessions granted to prominent Mexicans by Minister Mohene has been deferred by the Senate pending the presentation of data by representatives of various companies to show that the Mohene concessions would result in a loss to the government and prove ruinous to competing companies.

Important Telegram from Gen. Villa to Mr. Hearst

Sent over the censored Mexican telegraph lines controlled by the Constitutionalists.

To W. R. Hearst, New York:

I have delivered to John W. Roberts (New York American correspondent with General Villa's army) a copy in Spanish of a declaration in which I make clear my position concerning the conflict which is now going on in Mexico.

I desire to make public to the American people, as well as to the people of Mexico, that I have no desire to hold office, and that I wish to secure to my people the same conditions of liberty and good feeling which exist in the United States.

I have therefore asked Senor Roberts not only to translate perfectly the letter and spirit of my declaration of principles, but also to have that translation published in your many newspapers in order that it may obtain the most ample publicity.

FRANCISCO VILLA.

Does Not Seek Personal Power.

The statement referred to by General Villa, as translated by the New York American correspondent and approved by Villa later, is as follows:

"I have been informed that our enemies, the men who belong to the party of treachery, are developing intrigues abroad, using my name and exalting my military merits, with the object of making me appear possessor of ambitions which I do not possess, for the purpose of creating divisions and discords among the Constitutionalists. From the time when, by the side of Mr. Madero, 1910, I sustained on the battlefield the principles of Democratic constitutional government — which the people of Mexico desire to establish in order that our poor people who were exploited under dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz —until today, when I am fighting to overcome the treachery of Huerta and his accomplices, I believe I have demonstrated my unchangeable loyalty to the republic and to the ideals of the people.

Now, when the success of the Constitutionalist cause seems assured, when the bloody dictatorship of Huerta already is falling before the invincible strength of our troops and the loyalty of the people, and when the latter are about to reach the point where they will be able to exercise sovereign justice, I solemnly declare that I have no more ambition than to bring about the success of our principles, nor more interest than that of contributing to the establishment of a democratic and just government, emanating from the will of the people, that shall carry into effect all of the reforms necessary to found a new regime on the basis of equality, truth and justice for all and for the rehabilitation of the disinherited classes which have suffered so many miseries, shames and persecutions, and, finally, to establish a stable government which shall preserve from all danger the sovereignity and integrity of the nation.

"I am convinced that we all ought to put aside our own interests and ambitions in order to build up a great constitutional party having coherency and uniformity of views, with ideals as nearly perfect as a human mind can conceive, in order to secure for the people after success at arms and re-establishment of peace the free casting of votes for the choice of public officials.

"Anybody who would act otherwise at this time or who would sow the seeds of discord with a view toward awakening undue emulations and whispering wrong ambitions into the ears of the leaders shall be branded as a traitor to the cause of liberty.

"I CONSEQUENTLY DECLARE IN MOST POSITIVE MANNER THAT I SHALL NOT TOLERATE THAT MY HUMBLE NAME BE USED AS A BANNER OF DISCORD, AND SAY TO ALL WHO MAY ATTEMPT TO SO USE IT THAT I SHALL CONSIDER SUCH PERSONS AS MY PERSONAL ENEMIES AND ENEMIES TO THE CAUSE.

"When the Mexican people, after having made such sacrifices of blood and treasure in defence of their inalienable rights, finally do regain their lost liberties, they must know how to carry themselves in consonance with their new state, and so live as to set for coming generations an example of self abnegation and patriotism."

WOOD, IN JAIL, DENIES GUILT IN PEASLEE DEATH

rett, a Boston detective, to look after its interests; the Selectmen of Henniker have assigned Inspector Clifford B. Hildreth of Manchester to the case, and friends of Wood have engaged Henry Fuller, another Boston detective.

Another witness, a woman, entered into the case today. It is believed she can throw light on several of the alain man's financial transactions.

Attorney Donigan said today a new witness has been found who places the time of the murder at 9:10 p. m., the time which government witnesses say Wood was in Dan Donigan declared the alibi for Wood is now complete.

Wood, in a statement from the Concord Jail today, said:

"On the night Peaslee was slain I had supper at 6 o'clock, I sat on the porch for a while at Hattie Addis', where I board. I talked with the other lodgers for some time. I walked down the street with McDonald, one of the boarders.

"My stomach troubled me. I had cramps. I went to a doctor to get some brandy. He gave me a prescription. I went to the druggist to get the prescription filled, but he wouldn't give me the liquor.

WOOD'S STATEMENT.

"I sat on the porch in front of the Riverside Hotel for a while, talking with Bishop and Bailey. I had such a pain in my stomach that I thought I would take a walk and see if that would not ease it off. It was about 8:30 when I crossed the stone bridge and I walked slowly along Bridge street and up Depot Hill. Then I returned, walking at my usual pace.

"I met neat Bailey at the porch in front of the Riverside Hotel again a few minutes before 9 o'clock. We sat and talked a few minutes. Then I started for home. I heard the 9 o'clock whistle blow and saw the lights go out in Whitney's drug store on the corner. I saw Armstrong, the blacksmith, and two other men talking in front of the store . I walked to my boarding house and went to bed.

"I was in bed at 9:10. I did not go over to the other part of the town. I was nowhere near Peaslee's place and I had nothing to do with the murder. I was sorry when I heard about it."

Wood's story has had considerable weight with the residents of Henniker, and in view of recent developments Attorney Donigan is expected to present a formal demand to the Court for Wood's release in a short time.

Open Final Battle to Save Leo Frank's Life on Next Friday

ATLANTA, Ga., June 3.—The beginning of the final struggle for the life of Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, will come on Friday, when the motion will be heard to set aside the verdict on the ground that Frank was deprived of his constitutional privilege in not being present in court on the day of the verdict.

Solicitor Dorsey has affidavits from Judge Roan, who presided at the trial; from the sheriff, and also from Frank's lawyers, bearing on the absence of the prisoner. Should Judge Hill refuse to set aside the verdict, Frank's lawyers will appeal to the State Supreme Court, and if they lose there will take the case to the United States Supreme Court.

Unveil Endicott Shaft in England

WEYMOUTH, England, June 3.—A memorial erected on the spot from which John Endicott departed to cross the Atlantic in 1628, was unveiled by Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, wife of the Unionist leader. Louis Cook, who represented Weymouth, Mass., invited the corporation of the English town to attend the tercentenary of the foundation of New England.

Marriage License Records Are Broken

Applications for marriage licenses ran up to seventy yesterday. The total of June 1 and 2 was 163, against 138 for the same days last year. June 2 of last year had a record of sixty-three. Registrar McGlenen believes this will be a record-breaking week for marriage licenses.

HOWARD LEWIS, INSURANCE MAN, IN SANITARIUM

As the result of a physical and mental breakdown, on the part of T. Howard Lewis, manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, with offices at No. 95 Milk street, Paul S. Burns has been appointed acting manager to succeed Mr. Lewis.

This information was contained in a circular letter sent out by George K. Sargent, assistant general manager of domestic agencies of New York, and was received by every employe of the company.

Mr. Lewis has been manager of the Boston agency since 1908 and has been connected with the company for thirty years, beginning as a messenger boy. He is now at a private sanitarium recuperating.

George K. Sargent of New York is in charge of the Boston office temporarily, and the customary auditing of accounts is being undertaken, pending the change of management. When seen today Mr. Sargent said:

"Mr. Lewis has suffered a mental and physical breakdown as the result of too close application to business affairs. He is a complete wreck and will be unable to assume charge of an agency for some time to come, if at all.

"Mr. Burns has been appointed acting manager in place of Mr. Lewis, and a thorough auditing of the books is in progress. This is of no special significance, as it is a part of our policy to audit accounts before another manager assumes charge.

"I have seen that Mr. Lewis has not been in his accustomed health for some months past, and three months ago I urged him to take a vacation and forget business cares and worries for a season. He was a man who never took a vacation and this was sorely needed.

"No, I simply cannot leave my work," Mr. Lewis told me, and this is the result. He is now in a sanitarium. Last Thursday he suffered a breakdown in this office and it was necessary for me to assume temporary charge.

"My wife and the family are at their home in Milton and are suffering keenly over the unfortunate occurence."

T. HOWARD LEWIS, prominent insurance man who is in a sanitarium.

Detroit Baseball Man Asks Divorce

NEW YORK, June 3.—Frank R. Foss, vice-president of the Detroit baseball club, was brought to trial the first of a series of divorce and separation actions which involve himself, Lilian K. Foss, his wife, Percy N. Thorn and his wife, Lou N. Thorn. William H. Foss testified he was told by Mrs. Foss she "was very fond of Thorn and hoped some day to make him her husband."

Doctor Tells How to Shed Bad Complexion

We cannot restore degenerated facial tissue any more than we can restore a lost limb. It is useless to attempt to convert a worn-out complexion into a new one. The rational procedure is to remove the complexion instead—remove the devitalized cuticle. Not by surgical means, however, as the underlying cuticle is too thin, too tender, to withstand immediate exposure. Ordinary mercolized wax will gradually absorb the effete cuticle, by degrees, a new, youthful skin appears; a skin soft and delicately tinted as a rose petal.

To help your beauty try this. Procure an ounce of mercolized wax of the druggist. Spread on a thin layer before retiring, remembering this is the morning with soap and water. In from one to two weeks the complexion is completely transformed.

An approved treatment for wrinkles is provided by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings prompt and remarkable results.—Dr. R. Hutchinson in Popular Medicine.—ADVERTISEMENT.

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

WEDDINGS FILL THE CALENDAR TODAY

'THE BEST DAY OF ALL' SEES MANY BRIDES APPROACHING ALTAR

Among prominent weddings of the near future will be that next Monday of Miss Gertrude Augusta Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Graves of No. 36 Everett street, Arlington, former well-known residents of West Somerville, to Herman Castner Benner of North Cambridge.

The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents at 8 o'clock in the evening, with the Rev. F. A. Wilmot, pastor of the Universalist Church of West Somerville officiating. Miss Jennie Copeland of West Somerville will be the bride's only attendant. The best man will be Walter Graves, youngest brother of the bride.

The marriage is the culmination of a pretty school day romance, the young couple being classmates at the Somerville Latin High School in the class of 1909.

Today being Wednesday—the best day of all—there are brides galore flocking to the altar. Among the important out-of-town weddings with a strong interest for Boston is that of Miss Julia W. Robbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Robbins, and Lyding Hoyt, which is solemnized in the chapel of St. George's Church, New York, and attended by many Bostonians.

Among the ushers are Chalmers Wood of New York, a nephew of Mrs. Joseph P. Wood of No. 48 Chestnut street, and Samuel A. Weldon, brother-in-law of Mr. Hoyt. Mr. Hoyt is a cousin of Miss Ruth Appleton, whose engagement to William G. Wendell of Marlboro street, was recently announced. Charles L. Appleton, brother of Miss Appleton, will be Mr. Hoyt's best man.

The wedding of Miss Florence Marshall of New York and G. Ellis Densmore of Brookline takes place today at the Hotel Gotham in New York. Miss Marshall is a graduate of Ogontz School, near Philadelphia. Her sister, Mrs. Royale H. Fowler, is her matron of honor, and her bridesmaids include Miss Jean Haddock of New York, Miss Dorothy Scott of Germantown, Pa.; Miss Martha Walton of St. Davids, Pa., and Miss Elizabeth Densmore of Brookline.

Edward D. Densmore, Harvard '94, will be his brother's best man, and the ushers are John H. Densmore, another brother, Harvard '04; Chauncey Marshall, Jr., Harvard '01; Henry R. Beaman of New York, a graduate of Columbia, and Newell Vanderhoef of Brooklyn.

Tomorrow Mr. Densmore and his bride will sail for Europe, and upon their return will reside in Brookline.

This is also the wedding day of Miss Helen Virginia Ainslee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ainslee, and Harry Clark Coe, Jr. The wedding will take place in Arlington, N. J., after September 1 the young couple will be at home in Brookline.

* * *

The Boston Authors' Club holds an interesting meeting today at the home of Mrs. Daniel Lothrop, who owns and occupies the old Nathaniel Hawthorne home, "The Wayside," at Concord.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong of Brookline and Mrs. Armstrong's mother, Mrs. Frank Royal Gammons, and her brother, who make their home at the Somerset, are leaving town today for a motor trip to Centre Harbor, N. H.

An interesting event next Tuesday evening will be the meeting of the Winthrop Improvement and Historical Association, to be held in the old Dean Winthrop House, one of the six oldest houses in New England. Nixon Waterman will read.

Miss Constance Morss and her brother, Everett Morss, Jr., of Boston, have just arrived at the Wolcott in New York, where they joined their mother, Mrs. Everett Morss, who has been there for the past two weeks.

Gertrude Augusta Graves of Arlington, who will be bride next Monday of Herman Castner Benner of North Cambridge.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

PROGRESSIVES OPEN $50,000 FUND CAMPAIGN

The State-wide campaign of the Massachusetts Progressives to raise a working fund of $50,000 in the next eight days was put into operation today. Subscription papers were prepared for circulation among Progressives in every Congressional district in the State.

The plan was launched last night at a meeting of about six hundred Progressives, largely from the Greater Boston district, at the Mechanics' Building. The plan is similar to that pursued by the Y. M. C. A. in this city and New York and other places, and the aim is to make it as broad and general as possible. Matthew Hale announced that a small ground had already subscribed $10,000 toward the fund.

George W. Perkins of New York was the guest of honor. He brought cheering news from the Progressives of that State and of the entire country. After giving an account of the narrow escape from death Colonel Roosevelt had in the Brazilian jungles, he described the remarkable manner in which the Colonel has rallied and gotten back his old-time vigor and health. The mention of the Colonel's name brought the 600 to their feet cheering.

A letter from Colonel Roosevelt was read by Mr. Hale, commending the movement to raise a popular fund, and also one from Governor Hiram Johnson of California.

Charles Sumner Bird was cheered before and after he spoke. A band played popular and patriotic airs during the dinner, which preceded the speechmaking, and some of the songs were sung with the vigor of a revival meeting.

Countess Who Killed Orderly Exonerated

ONEGLIA, Italy, June 3.—Countess Tiepolo-Oggioni, a Venetian noblewoman, was acquitted of a charge of murdering the orderly of Captain Oggioni, her husband, November 11, 1913. The Countess testified that she had killed the man when he entered her room and attacked her.

Youth Confesses to Setting 17 Fires

WOONSOCKET, June 3.—Because he "wanted to hear the fire bells and see the engines go," Edouard Charpentier, twelve, set seventeen fires here in four days, according to the story the police say he told them. None of the fires caused serious damage.

HOUSE PASSES COUNCIL BILL TO BE ENGROSSED

The "larger city council" bill was passed to be engrossed in the House today. This was practically the last stage before the bill goes to Governor Walsh for his signature. The bill is expected to reach the Governor in a day or two.

In an eleventh hour attempt to tack an amendment onto the bill, the Citizens' Municipal League and Good Government Association tried to have these two questions submitted to the voters of Boston:

"1—Are you satisfied under the present system under which a city council of nine is elected at large?

"2—Do you prefer a city council of seventeen from twelve districts?"

The amendment was defeated on a rising vote, 94 to 48. A roll call was demanded which meant that thirty at least must stand up. At first the tellers counted exactly the necessary number. Then the stillness was broken by Martin Lomasney's voice:

"Sit down."

The Lomasney verbal broadside was aimed at Representative James McInerney, who had been half standing, half sitting during the counting of the vote. McInerney at once sat down, and on the recount but twenty-nine were counted, and the roll call was'n called.

Everybody laughed when Lomasney shouted out. A few minutes later Representative Hickey tried to make the shout a "point of order," but Speaker Cushing couldn't see it as such.

DOMINION AID FOR SURVIVORS OF EMPRESS

QUEBEC, June 3.—With the loss of life in the Empress of Ireland disaster fixed at 1,024 by the latest official statement of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Dominion officials today turned their attention to the living.

Parliament will be asked to vote money for the relief of sufferers who lost everything but their lives in the catastrophe. Government agents are here to learn how much will be needed to care for the survivors. The amount to be asked in the appropriation bill that will be presented to Ottawa will be based on these agents' reports. It is expected that from $150,000 to $200,000 will be voted.

FUNERALS POSTPONED.

Today was the date originally set for the funerals of identified members of the Empress' crew. The ceremonies were postponed, however, until tomorrow because the soldiers of the garrison would have been unable to participate today, which is the anniversary of King George's birth.

In spite of persistent and emphatic denials by officials of the Canadian Pacific, further evidence was brought out today that cowardice and selfishness on the part of the crew had much to do with the appalling loss of life.

Mrs. W. M. Mullins, who is near death in Jeffrey Hall Hospital, and August Sexe, third officer of the Storstad, are the new witnesses. The story of Andrew Vancosten, Abraham Heller and Mrs. Anderson, wife of the Storstad skipper, has been denied. Mrs. Mullins said:

"When the Empress sank I was catapulted from the deck into the water. When I regained my senses I was holding onto the side of a boat with both hands. I cried for help and a sailor looked over and saw me.

PLUNG SAILOR ASIDE.

"'Damn you,' he cried, 'get away from here. We haven't got any room for you.'

"Then he tried to unfasten my hands and a steerage passenger helped him. Archibald Brown, who was lying in the boat almost unconscious, heard me and stood up.

"'For God's sake save me. I am a mother and my baby is small; let me live for its sake,' I screamed. Mr. Brown flung the sailor aside and pulled me in. I saw other women refused aid the same way."

Captain Walsh, marine superintendent of the Canadian Pacific railway, declared today:

"The reports are absolutely unfounded. The crew behaved splendidly. Rescued passengers speak in the highest terms of the excellent discipline maintained by all."

COMPANY COMES TO DEFENCE OF THE COLLIER CAPTAIN

MONTREAL, June 3.—Defending Captain Thomas Anderson of the collier Storstad from the charges made against him in connection with the Empress of Ireland disaster, a formal statement was today issued by the owners of the collier, citing the fact that of the less than 450 saved, 259 were sheltered and cared for on the Storstad.

The statement was given out by Captain Ove Lange, Montreal agent of the Maritime Steamship Company of Norway, which owned the Storstad and leased it to the Black Diamond Line. It was issued after a careful investigation and conferences with counsel for the company.

Of the 259 survivors cared for on the Storstad, the statement claims, 228 were rescued by the collier's crew and boats.

Thirty others were rescued by the Storstad's men, but placed on board the Eureka. It points out that the lifeboats of the Empress are credited with saving only 125, and these were placed on board the Storstad.

The statement repudiates reports published by the afternoon papers here that Mrs. Anderson, wife of the collier's captain, accused Captain Kendall of the Empress of having been drinking.

"The Storstad carried 28 men all told," the statement adds. "She had three regular lifeboats and one small rig. Immediately after the accident all these boats were manned and swung out."

LORD MERSEY SAILS SATURDAY FOR INQUIRY ON DISASTER AT SEA

LONDON, June 3.—Lord Mersey, who will be one of the three members of the court of inquiry which will investigate the Empress of Ireland disaster, will sail for New York on Saturday. He will go direct from New York to Montreal, but it has not yet been decided whether the court will sit in that city or in Quebec. It may hold sessions in both. The opening session of the court of inquiry will be held on June 15. The newspapers commenting today upon the appointment of Lord Mersey state that an impartial and deep probe is assured.

The Lord Mayor's fund for the families of the victims of the Empress of Ireland grew rapidly today. It was announced at noon that the fund had reached $45,000, but immediately afterwards the custodians of the fund said that the Canadian Pacific Company, owners of the Empress of Ireland, had contributed $50,000.

BOSTONIANS PLAN DISPLAY FOR IRELAND

Under the leadership of John Nolen, expert city planner, just returned from Dublin, a group of Boston men is at work on plans for aiding the civic exhibition to be held at Dublin this Summer. Meetings have already been held. Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, J. Mitchel Galvin, Desmond Fitzgerald, Chester I. Campbell, Bernard J. Rothwell and John Jackson Walsh of the City Planning Board are among those helping the work.

Most of the big public institutions in Ireland are collaborating to make the exhibition a success.

A $2,500 prize has been offered for a city plan for Dublin. A feature that will attract many visitors to the exhibition is the "Irish Old Home Week," planned for the first week in August.

Mrs. Hill Tickell, secretary of the civic exhibition, is in charge of arrangements for this Old Home Week, and is glad to secure all accommodations for visitors and to plan side tours out of Dublin. John Nolen, who lives in Cambridge, can give any information wanted in connection with the exhibition.

Boston Latin and English Clash Today

The Boston Latin and English High baseball nines meet in their annual game on the Locust street grounds, South Boston, June 1, noon instead of next Friday afternoon as previously announced.

English High played Cambridge Latin yesterday, but Coach Fred L. O'Brien did not use Freddy Buttner or Fred Brannan, the regular pitchers, because he wished to use them in the Latin game.

Coach Fred J. O'Brien of Boston Latin expects to pitch Terry Delson and Captain Dick McGinn will catch.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Ralph F. Coburn, New England district manager of the Maxwell Motor Company, is greatly pleased with the showing made by the sturdy Detroit car in the big race at Indianapolis on Saturday last. He points with pride to the fact that the Maxwell 25 exceeded its speed and endurance six famous foreign racing cars and sixteen American racing cars and believes that had the Maxwell been less unseasoned it would have made a still finer showing.

Many congratulatory messages have poured in upon the Maxwell Company, not only from friends in this country, but from France, England and Germany as well. Many of the racing drivers who inspected the motor of the Maxwell at the track declared that it is one of the most wonderful ever designed in this country.

At a meeting of the commercial vehicle committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, held yesterday in New York, a number of matters of importance to motor truck makers, dealers and users were discussed. Foremost among these was standardization of truck design and the danger of proceeding too fast in this direction at the present time.

Wide difference exist in fundamental characteristics between the most successful and widely used makes of commercial cars and an insurmountable obstacle to standardization of such characteristics is the variation in working conditions and the kinds of work the cars are called upon to perform. Standardization of equipment along proper lines, it was decided, is both desirable and feasible.

MRS. G. FRANKLIN MOHR of Providence and her baby. Mrs. Mohr's husband accuses her of conspiring with a servant girl to aid in securing a divorce.

GIRL'S CHARGES PLOT OF WIFE, SAYS DR. MOHR

PROVIDENCE, June 3.—Dr. G. Franklin Mohr, fashionable doctor here with a $50,000 Summer home at Newport, who began his defense today at his trial on charges brought by Mary McConville, a former servant in his home, charges that the accusations against him are a result of a plot between the girl and his wife, who is seeking a divorce.

"Several months a girl from a department store," said Dr. Mohr today. "This trial has opened my eyes. I shall sue for a divorce when it is finished."

Mrs. Mohr was Elizabeth F. Blair. She is receiving $100 a month alimony pending the hearing of her divorce suit. The Mohrs have two children.

"A plot to discredit me was hatched in Boston," said Dr. Mohr. "It is a plan to get possession of my property."

White Offered Bout with Welsh in London

CHICAGO, June 4.—Charley White has been offered the Freddie Welsh match in London that Willie Ritchie declined. The Chicagoan is ready to accept provided the date is moved from July 4 to July 14 and he receives a guarantee of $10,000. He says he demanded this amount because he has stage contracts that call for that amount. White says he would rather fight than work behind the footlights.

30 STAR MEN FOR B. A. A. ON CINDER PATH

By FRED HOEY.

Thirty athletes, every man a star in his specialty, will represent the Boston athletic Association on the cinder path this Summer. The list of athletes furnished by Manager George V. Brown includes many names of national reputation.

The Unicorn Club has the call on the cream of the college talent that resides around Boston, and the acquisition of three men next month, in addition to the club performers already on the associate membership list of the Exeter street club, rounds out a team with more power than ever produced by any club in New England.

RYDER BIG AID TO CLUB.

The Irish-American A. A., the hustling organization, appears to be the only club in the field that will present a battle against the B. A. A. performers this year, but the new club is unable to put such a field of stars on the track as those that will wear the Unicorn.

The athletic committee at the B. A. A. is supporting the track team with all its power and when the outdoor season closes on Labor Day, the committee expects to have a handsome list of points, representing wins in open meets, tacked on the wall of George Brown's office.

The B. A. A's big asset is the fact that Jack Ryder is coaching. Ryder has done remarkable work with the Unicorn athletes since he took the coaching reins two years ago.

In gathering in athletes the B. A. A. has strengthened itself in every possible athletic event. The headliner of course is Captain Halpin, the quarter miler.

SOME STAR PERFORMERS.

Others who will sport the Unicorn are Jimmy Powers, the mile champion, Oscar Hedlund, in the middle distance runner; Bob Green in the half-mile and mile; Jess Dow, sprinter; F. J. Hiney, sprinter; Frankie Fitzgerald, sprinter; Tom Guething, sprinter; Dave Caldwell, of quarter-miler; Dave Caldwell, of quarter-miler; Dave Caldwell, of quarter-miler; H. F. Mahoney, distance runner; A. J. Mahoney, miler; Phil McGrath, half-miler; Frank Marceau of Dartmouth, miler; J. A. High, hurdler; Maro Wright, holder of the world's pole vault record; Larry Whitney of Dartmouth, shot putter; J. C. Johnstone of Harvard, high and broad jumper; Harry Barwise, high jumper; J. L. McLaughlin, broad jumper; Eddie Teschner of Harvard, sprinter; Bill Bingham of Harvard, quarter and half-miler; Jim Burke of Lehigh, quarter-miler; C. B. Wyman, shot putter; M. A. Connors, sprinters, and Rourke, javelin thrower.

In this big batch there are several men who are rated as good hurdlers.

Win for Mrs. Brown.

WINCHESTER, June 3.—Mrs. Maurice F. Brown was the winner of the medal play handicap golf match for women over the new courses of the Winchester Country Club.

AMERICAN POLO CUP DEFENDERS FINALLY NAMED

By J. S. MITCHEL.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The lineup of the British and American international polo teams which will battle for the Westchester cup next week were made known at Meadow Brook. Today there will be an official announcement by the Polo Association. The arrangement of the challengers was known to nearly half of the 4,000 persons who journeyed out to the scene of the big match.

The American team will be Rene La Montagne, No. 1; J. M. Waterbury, Jr., No. 2; Devereux Milburn, No. 3; and "Larry" Waterbury, back. The substitutes will be C. C. Rumsey, Malcolm Stevenson, Foxhall P. Keene and H. C. Phipps.

The British team will be:

Captain H. A. Tomkinson, No. 1; Captain Leslie St. C. Cheape, No. 2; Major F. W. Barrett, No. 3; and John A. Traill, back. Substitutes, Lord Wimbourne, Captain Vivian N. Lockett.

On the American team Rene La Montagne is the newest international-ist, and his effort next week will be his first attempt as a defender of the cup. He is a member of the Rockaway Hunting Club, at Cedarhurst, L. I., and is a six-goal handicap player on the 1914 American list. He played No. 2 on the Rockaway Club team which captured the American senior championship in 1901 and 1902. He is a good horseman and a hard hitter. In all the practice matches of the American team this Spring he gave every evidence of being the strongest player for the vacant place on the "Big Four."

Richards Elected Captain.

MIDDLETOWN, June 3.—James A. Richards, '15, of Honolulu, Hawaii, was tonight elected captain of the Wesleyan tennis team for the coming year. Richards holds the tennis championship of Hawaii and has played three years on the "varsity four. Last year he and Bacon won the doubles championship at Newport, while this year he was runner-up with Rowell.

YACHTING EXPERT SAYS VANITIE'S VICTORY DUE TO DENNIS' GOOD WORK

BALDWIN OUT WITH SWEEPING DEFI TO RIVALS

By JACK CONWAY.

THERE MUST BE SOMETHING IN June air which causes boxers to desire to display their stock in trade within the hemp ropes, for every ring man of any prominence in these parts is telling the dear old public what a fine little fighter he is and how he would dearly like to battle any young man who believes he can defeat him.

THE FEVER HAS ALSO AFFECTED our noble boxing managers. Eddie Murphy, who directs the pugilistic affairs of Matty Baldwin, is the latest to be hit by the challenging germ, and today relieved himself of the following:

There has been considerable talk recently about the New England lightweight championship. Several boxers are claiming the championship, but I believe that the title was won by Matty Baldwin when he defeated Kid Goodman. Both Baldwin and Goodman were under 123 pounds for the bout.

THERE ARE MANY ALLEGED lightweights in New England who believe that they have a claim on the championship. But, and to relate, the majority of them weigh between 135 and 145 pounds which I believe is several pounds above the lightweight limit.

Gilbert Gallant has been declaring that he is able to meat Baldwin. I am willing to match Matty with the Chelsea boxer at any time, but the weight must be at least 134 pounds at 3 o'clock or 135 pounds ringside, for I positively refuse to permit Baldwin to clash with Gallant at catchweights.

Baldwin is also ready to exchange blows with Eddie Murphy of South Boston, but he must make some reasonable weight. I would like to get a date for Baldwin with Freddy Welsh, the English lightweight champion, and I am of the opinion that the Hunker Hill boy would be able to give the English title holder a thrilling battle.

In order to prove that Baldwin is a regular lightweight, I am willing to let him come in as low as 130 pounds for a tussle with Johnny Kilbane. But when Baldwin does out of his class again he will take on "Gunboat" Smith or Sam Langford, two of our popular young 145-pound lightweights.

MIKE GLOVER, THE SKILFUL Boston welterweight, hopes to win in his twelve-round bout with Al Britton of New York, which will be staged before the University Club in Cambridge Friday night.

Glover is a Boston boy, but has only fought a few bouts in this city. The majority of his battles have been held in New York. Glover has been made a favorite over Britton, but the latter is rated as a rugged, hard-handed fighter and may cause a surprise by his work.

Track & Field

By FRED HOEY

The remarkable leap of Lincoln Prescott of Andover, when he tossed 23 feet 3¼ inches in the dual meet with Exeter, is the talk of the local track world. The feat was all the more remarkable because of the fact that the lad competed with a sprained ankle. The injury he received in a match game of baseball, when he came with a strike out in his right foot, which required a visit to the doctor. He competed against his physician's advice.

Prescott is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs only 153 pounds. This is the third year at Andover, and he is ling for the captaincy.

Tom Keane, coach of the Syracuse track team, will have a great bunch of cinder pounsters for future use at the university. Tom is supervising playground athletics in Syracuse during the Summer.

It is to be regretted that some track authority in Canada cannot get hold of Edward Faire, the Marathon star, that he was violating a rule of the Canadian A. A. U. when he competed for the clubs in the Boston Marathon race. Faire was second in the road race. He will have a hearing Friday.

It is possible that Faire will be ineligible to compete in the intercollegiate meet of the Pentathon 72, A. C. H., next.

Sam Ward of Chelsea, a prominent professional runner of 25 years ago, has not lost interest in the track game since his days in the White Wings. He is a regular visitor to the track game of yesterday. He remarks that athletics are not the same since money path matters intelligent.

The danger of the edging too close to the pace in running cross country was again impressed at the recent Irish-American A. C. games in New York. Liam O'Shea, a sprinter, was struck between the shoulders by Matt McGrath, holder of the world's hammer throwing weight. The injury was not serious, however.

"We don't want champions all the time, but more competition," remarked Gustave T. Kirby, who referred the intercollegiate, in commenting on the general improvement the new scoring of points provided for the meet.

It is not generally known that Arthur Duffy, since he was declared a professional, was first contracted by a Boston sporting goods house to do the sod sprinting. Duffy was to receive a salary and a percentage that would be unusual, but that "Duff" had confessed. It was a commercial proposition that Duffy had figured out, but words were crossed and the premature announcement put him in bad.

John Paul Jones and Ted Hoyt assisted Jack Mosley in coaching the middle distance and cross country runners.

The big B. A. A. squad of athletes train every night at Tech field under the direction of each coach.

Patterson, the University of Pennsylvania sprinter, who broke down in the intercollegiate meet, will have recovered sufficiently from his leg injury in two weeks, to compete in the English championships in the Polo Grounds July 4. Patterson, in shape, ought to provide interesting sprinting for the Britons.

Nelson H. Norgren, captain of the University of Chicago football team last fall, has been appointed coach of the track, football and baseball teams at the University of Utah.

There was a record made in the intercollegiate trials that has not been recorded. In the summer three gentlemen rowed from Boston to Nantucket and 15 throws were measured, the greatest number of throws ever measured. Five men heaved the hammer over 150 feet, an unusual record.

Morrison, the University of California high jumper, is a big subject and several big offers have been turned down by him. The coast boy looked more like an athlete at any other time than competing in the big meet yet the lad showed good form at the jumps.

Pennypacker, the Harvard quarter miler, is a son of Headmaster Pennypacker of Boston Latin School. Pennypacker was one of the intercollegiate stars put when he represented Harvard years ago. The headmaster, by the way, has been prominently mentioned as the next head of Phillips Exeter Academy to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Principal Amen.

VANITIE'S WIN DUE TO DENNIS, EXPERT CLAIMS

By DUNCAN CURRY.

NEW YORK, June 3.—On the wings of a stiff northwestern breeze, with her lee rail under and her golden bronze hull shining in the sunlight, Alexander Smith Cochran's Gardner-designed cup candidate Vanitie won the first of the trial races to select the American Cup defender on Long Island Sound, defeating the so-called flag officers' Herreshoff-designed yacht Resolute by 15 minutes 46 seconds, actual time.

It was an interesting but a very unsatisfactory race. At the start the Resolute got away first from the Connecticut shore in a light northerly breeze, and more than held her lead in the reach across the Sound and the Long Island shore, where a light southwesterly breeze greeted the racers.

VANITIE TAKES THE LEAD.

The Resolute further increased her lead in the little windward work back to the Connecticut shore, where she was nearly three minutes ahead of her bronze rival.

Then the yachts had a reach to the home mark on the first round, and right here the luck combined with Dennis' more skilful use of light sails on the Vanitie, brought about a change in the positions of the boats. By the time they arrived at the home mark on the first round the Vanitie was on almost equal terms with her rival.

On the reach across the Sound to the Long Island shore Dennis again showed his superiority over the Boston amateur in handling light canvas, and soon worked through the Herreshoff boat's lee and took the lead.

The luck now all came Vanitie's way and getting the stronger breezes first she soon obtained a commanding lead and finished way ahead in a fresh northwesterly breeze, with the Resolute over three minutes behind.

SECOND RACE ON TODAY.

There was a big fleet of steam and sailing craft out to see the sport, to say nothing of about half a hundred of the crack boats of the 30-mile schedule race. The committee craft included Rear Commodore George F. Lee, Vice Commodore Dallas B. Pratt of the New York Yacht Club on board.

The second race will race again today and tomorrow.

Boat.	Start. H. M. S.	Finish. H. M. S.	Ed. time. H. M. S.
Vanitie...	12:46:56	5:26:00	4:39:23
Resolute.	12:46:13	5:42:23	4:56:11

The Vanitie won by 16 minutes 48 seconds, actual time. Her measurements have not been given out, but she will probably have to allow the Resolute a handicap of about four minutes.

Martin Defeats Thiel.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Johnny Martin defeated Joe Thiel of Philadelphia in a ten-round bout at the Olympic Club. Martin fought roughly.

Eddie Wallace outpointed Patsy Callahan in the main bout of ten rounds at the Broadway Sporting Club. Phil Bloom bested Joe Bedell.

Amateur Games

The White Bears have several open dates for Saturdays which they would like to book with teams of the strongest semi-professional teams in New England. Address Lawrence McCarthy, 90 Harwood street, Roxbury; tel. Roxbury 1700.

The Brookside A. C. is out to win the semi-professional championship of the city. It has arranged games with strong teams. Address Manager Kelley, No. 200 Dudley street, Roxbury.

The Cherokees of Roxbury are seeking games for Saturdays with fast twelve-fifteen-year-old clubs. Address Manager Cherokees, No. 8 Pontiac street, Roxbury, for dates.

The Boston Newsboys' baseball team is without a game for next Saturday and would like to hear from fast clubs. Address Manager Ring, 10 Oxford street, Somerville.

The Rodindale Athletics are without a game for Saturday, June 6, so would like to hear from one of the fastest semi-professional teams in the State for a game away from home. Address J. Doolan, 65 Fairfield street, Roslindale, on tel. between 5 and 5:30, Hyd. 2580.

A fast, hard-hitting outfielder, with league experience is anxious to secure a tryout with some strong semi-professional team in Massachusetts. Address communication to H. J. Leonard, general delivery, Boston.

The Maples of Medford would like a game next Sunday from June 6, with any fast amateur team. H. Eldridge, No. 39 Winchester street, Medford.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

IT is easy to see why the Athletics are nearly always up near the top of the American League ladder. And by the same token it is easy to see why the Red Sox have to work so hard to win. One has to watch the two teams when they come together to fully appreciate the difference.

THE Athletics make few if any mistakes. This does not mean that they do not make errors. Errors are part of the game. They always have been and they always will be. But leaving errors aside, the Athletics play ball almost perfectly. They make few errors of judgment. Their defence is about as strong as it can be made. The $100,000 infield is there with the goods.

BUT it is on the offence that they win their games. It is almost perfect. They are not caught napping. None can work the hidden ball trick on them. They do not allow opposing infielders to sneak up behind them and tag them out at second base as Speaker was tagged in the Washington series. When they steal a base and the opposing catcher throws wild, they do not dash madly for third, as Hooper did yesterday, without knowing where the ball is.

THEY play ball all the time and their mind is on the game. They play the percentage which the Red Sox do not play. They do not have men killed off here and there by some foolish move or by carelessness as the Red Sox have been killed off so often this season.

THERE are three more games to be played between the Red Sox and Athletics before the series ends. The Sox may win all three of them or they may lose all three, but that will not alter the fact that the Athletics play perfect ball nearly all the time and the Red Sox do not.

It is a very great pleasure and a great education to see the world's champions in action. It is particularly a pleasure to see how they work to get the runs over the plate.

EVERYBODY was glad to see Clyde Engle come through with a pinch hit (bases full) and score a couple of runs near the close of the second game. Engle is a hard-working, conscientious player. He had to be laid off because his batting fell away below par, but he is out in the sidelines every afternoon doing all that is asked of him and more.

• • •

EVERETT SCOTT is a game lad. He followed up Engle's drive with a slashing hit in the direction of right field. This would undoubtedly have brought in another run if the uncommonly active Eddie Collins had not broken the force of the drive.

• • •

BUT Scott's hit filled the bases, and it is here that Connie Mack yanked Pennock from the box and sent Shawkey in. Lewis pasted the first ball to Barry and was doubled up with Scott, thus ending the rally so well begun.

• • •

AFTER the game there were many arguments regarding the judgment of Lewis in going after the first ball pitched to him by Shawkey. Many held that he should have waited. But Lewis' play was unquestionable to take a whack at the first ball that looked good to him. If Lewis had cracked out a three-bagger and won the game there would have been no question as to his judgment, would there?

Fix Dates for Big Automobile Races

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Dates for the big automobile races to be held next year in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition were announced today. The Vanderbilt cup race will be run on the exposition grounds February 2, the Grand Prix March 7 and the Panama-Pacific cup race March 14.

In addition to these contests it is planned to hold a road race from New York to San Francisco. The course would be over the Lincoln Highway with the finish at the exposition grounds.

RINDGE TECH CREW PICKED TO WIN FINAL

The crack four-oared crew of Rindge Tech is favorite to win the championship of the Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association in the final race to be held on the Charles River this afternoon.

The first crews of Brookline High, Boston Latin and Cambridge High and Latin are the others that have won their way into the final heat for the title as a result of the preliminary heats raced on Monday.

In the preliminary races the Rindge four won by nearly six lengths over Brookline High, and this showing makes them the favorites. The Boston Latin crew is likely to cause much bother, and if it shows the form that it displayed on Monday it will make the winners go close to the record in order to win.

A better performence is expected from the four representing Cambridge Latin, and the Brookline four should display more speed.

The race is expected to be one of the best ever held by this association and a large crowd of schoolboy enthusiasts will line the mile course to see the crews battle.

In the race for the second crews, Brookline High is the favorite to win, but not till after the closest kind of a race with Boston College High, H. S. of Commerce and Huntington School.

Champions of West Want Harvard Game

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 3.—Milwaukee Harvard graduates will urge the lifting of their university's ban on intersectional football at the eighteenth annual convention of the Associated Harvard Clubs June 5 and 6.

The plans of the alumni join with those of other Western alumni who desire to see the gridiron heroes of their alma mater on Western fields and who will urge that Harvard play at least one game a season in the West.

Visitors and the Milwaukee men are urgent in their demand that Harvard shall be pitted against a big Western team, preferably Wisconsin, the 1913-1914 champions of the West.

Yale Athletes to Go Barnstorming

Not only will Wesley Ohler, the high jumper and Ted Potter, the sprinter, both of Yale, compete in English championships on July 4 but they have arranged a schedule abroad which will carry them through Germany, France and Sweden in athletic competition.

Collins After Race with French Champ

Elmer Collins of Lynn is out with a challenge today to race any of the star pace followers after his clean cut victory over Bobby Walthour and Percy Lawrence in a twenty-five-mile race at the Beach track last evening.

Collins was almost half a mile ahead of Walthour and three-quarters of a mile ahead of Lawrence at the finish. The time was 34m. 41 2-5s.

The amateur and professional events furnished several surprises. The summary:

Halfmile amateur handicap race—Won by Charles Turville, Jr. (30 yds.); Reserve, second; John Barry (20 yds.), Cambridge; third, Tom Connolly (15 yds.), Everett; fourth, C. C. Bullins (0 yds.), Roxbury. Time—1m. 1-5s.

Halfmile amateur, professional race—Won by Harold Rockwell, Providence; second, Hugh McFarland, Boston; third, Henry Jackson, Raleigh, N. C.; fourth, ——. Time—1m. 2-5s.

One-mile invitation amateur race—Won by Paul McKeon, South Boston; second, C. Bodreau, Boston. Time—1m. 2-5s.

Two-mile professional handicap race—Won by Alvin Lafitz (10 yds.), Providence, R. I.; second, F. Tims (70 yds.), Boston; third, Merle Mitchell (20 yds.), Boston; fourth, Ray Jones (150 yds.), Boston. Time—3m. 2-5s.

Three-mile amateur race—Won by Vincent Maguire, Providence; second, F. Ross, Boston; third, Charles Purtelle, Revere; fourth, Tom Connolly, Everett. Time—11m. 2h 2-5s.

Twenty-five-mile motor-paced race—Won by Elmer Collins, Lynn; second, Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, Ga.; third, Percy Lawrence, San Francisco, Cal. Time—36m. 41 2-5s.

SOX-ATHLETICS IN ANOTHER DOUBLE BILL

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Two more games for one price of admission up at Fenway pastures this afternoon, and the world's champs are still the attraction. First game at 1:45 o'clock.

Ray Collins, who usually gives a good account of himself against the Athletics, will undoubtedly be seen on the mound in one of the games, and it would not be surprising if Joe Wood went to the firing line in the other battle. If Wood doesn't pitch Bedient will probably be Uncle Billy's selection.

As for the pitchers that Connie Mack will present, you can't tell anything about them. Any one of them, or all of them, are not unlikely to be seen before sundown. Mack takes no chances. A couple of days in succession or a couple of hours, one after the other, and he varies his pitcher out and shows a new one.

The two games yesterday were hot old battles. The Mackmen were quite lucky to get an even break. That eighth inning of the second game was exciting enough to suit anybody, and Connie Mack squirmed in launch on the bench while the Red Sox were at bat. The cheering was something tremendous.

In spite of the fact that the Athletics play more finished baseball than the Red Sox, our boys will fight the champs to a standstill every time they meet in a series. Connie Mack makes no secret of the fact that he fears the Boston team. He knows its latent strength and his players know it. As a result, they play for everything in sight.

Rice Plans Shakeup in Columbia Crew

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 3.—The three eight-oared crews of Columbia University were on the river today for a long row and Coach Jim Rice was much pleased with the work of his squad.

No changes have been made in the crews, but it is understood that Coach Rice is not wholly satisfied with the seating of the men, and several changes may be made before June 26, the day of the intercollegiate regatta.

FANS! FREE BASEBALL TICKETS FOR YOU!

How does that sound, boys?

Free reserved seat tickets at Fenway Park and Walpole street!

Sounds too good to be true, doesn't it? But it's a fact, nevertheless, as the thousands who sat in comfortable reserved seats at the two home grounds last year, as the guests of the AMERICAN, can testify.

And it's all at the expense of the AMERICAN.

Here's how you get the tickets: Thousands of numbered checks have been and are being distributed each day among AMERICAN readers. Each check contains a special number.

A list of numbers will be printed in the AMERICAN each week-day (beginning today) in the 10 o'clock edition and Sporting Extra edition ONLY. One hundred numbers will be printed each day until further notice. When a duplicate of the number which is on the check you hold appears in the 10 o'clock edition or Sporting Extra edition, bring or send check to the AMERICAN Promotion Dept., No. 5 Winthrop square, and you will receive a free ticket to any one of the Red Sox or Braves' games on the home grounds. You don't need to use the ticket until it suits your convenience as it will be good at the box office at Fenway Park or Walpole street any time during the season that you present it.

If you haven't yet obtained a check ask your news dealer for some. Be sure and save your checks and refer to the numbers each day because if the duplicate number does not appear in the AMERICAN today it may be printed tomorrow. But when it does appear it means a free baseball ticket for you.

Watch for the first list of numbers in today's 10 o'clock edition or Sporting Extra edition.

The eastern trip was a real treat to some of the recruits on our club. Not seeing the sights in New York, Boston and Philadelphia by the first time proved a regular jubilee in itself. Jumping the Brooklyn Bridge, the Aquarium, Central Park and all such places which the New Yorker wouldn't think of visiting, but which make a great hit with the out-of-town people.

One of our pitchers wasn't going to be caught napping, so he bought a newspaper almanac and got the dope in advance on all the places visited. This when some of the amateur guides tried to enlighten the party, this fellow pulled the real facts, figures, dates and all that sort of thing and bowled them up by the almanac in this way he averaged 100 per cent. in the argument league.

We had a couple of off Sundays that were great for the sightseers. Personally, I am not very keen for rest days on the road, preferring to play rather than to idle. If there were any chances to go hunting, however, I'd welcome them. Hunting is right where I like it. It occupies the major part of my time in the Winter months and when I can get out in a good quail country with a dog that knows his business, I'm so happy that I don't care if I never get another hit.

HUNTING is the great Winter-time sport of the baseball fraternity in general, and there are few major league players who haven't some talent with the gun. I have had several visits in the Fall and have spent some great days at George Stallings' place in Georgia.

I HEARD of a funny story in connection with hunting last Winter. There was a fellow down in my country who was a little tight with his change, and whenever he went out hunting he took only a handful of shells. These usually ran out before long and he paid the rest of the day borrowing from other hunters finally getting tired of passing over shells costing about 5 cents apiece and never getting them back, so they cooked up a scheme to cure him.

They had a lot of shells loaded with one solitary buckshot, and when the borrower began the "gimme" stuff they passed him out this doctored ammunition. Of course he wasn't hitting a thing with the buckshot and he kept putting a nudder and madder as he missed easy shots.

After he had spent the greater part of the day doing this and was about on his last load of borrowed shells, he happened to hit a bird. The big buckshot tore the quail all to pieces—split it right in half, as though a knife had been run through it.

The right-hand gunner knew that nothing like that could happen with ordinary bird shot, so he cut open one of the shells that remained in his pocket and discovered the trick that had been played on him. Then he tumbled to the act that the boys were getting weary of supplying him with shooting material and after that he loosened up and bought enough to last him.

BRAVES OUT TO EVEN UP GAMES WITH DODGERS

BROOKLYN, June — — stallings failed to make good his promise of a double victory yesterday and barely escaped with an even break. But this is another day and the same promise holds good, but there is only one game on the slate for this afternoon.

The Boston Braves started off strong in the opening game, but in order to win they played enough baseball to last an ordinary team a week.

It required thirteen innings for Boston to win by 3 to 2, and there was much pith and moment in the second game, which Brooklyn won by 4 to 3.

The opener stretched over two and a half hours, while the second clash lasted one hour and fifty-six minutes.

Big Bill James was his own hero in the first game. Bill credited himself with a timely two-bagger in the fifth inning, and in the last round it was his slam through Cheney that let in Mann with the run that told the tale.

Boston put up an errorless defence until the fifth inning of the second clash, when a throw from Mann to Maranville hit a runner on the leg, enabling him to reach third.

That was a costly miscue, as Cheney scored the runner who should have been mastered on the end.

Maranville was again the star of the Braves on the offence, while Mann was another of the Hub boys who made a hit in the last four games, nor has he delivered a whack that bore even a family resemblance to a hit.

HARVARD CREW GIVEN SECRET TIME TRYOUT

HARVARD TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Ct., June 3.—Coach Wray had the Harvard varsity crew out early this morning for a secret time row over the four-mile course and at the finish he seemed more than satisfied with the showing of the men.

Morning and afternoon practice is now the rule for the Crimson oarsmen, and in the first of the tryouts here the big eight was sent over the course to the railroad bridge under ideal conditions, with wind, tide and smooth water, but a low stroke was maintained for the entire distance.

On the turn home they were met by the freshman eight at the three-mile mark and both eights rowed slowly to the boathouse.

Wray was pleased at the work of both crews, especially the freshman eight, which was given a severe test with Coach Richardson, a sub, was put in the boat at 3 and Lovell forced out. Backbone Chase from bow to 7, Young 2 to 4, Potter 3 to bow.

The new order looked good, although the eight is not definitely selected as yet. The freshman four paddled down to the two-mile mark at the New York end and back.

Coach Herrick has the second eight in hand and is putting them over the four-mile course, paced by the freshman eight. He is being made in

THE door slammed.

In Russia the mere nod of a head or the snap of a finger may condemn some ill-fated innocent to a life in the mines of Siberia, so the slam of a door is likely to be a thing of evil portent. Margery Seaton looked up quizzically—but her expression changed as she saw the palpitant figure that cowered against the door.

"Marya!'' she cried, pityingly.

The waiter, who was arranging the Seaton apartments for an afternoon tea, seemed to share her interest, if not her sympathy. His face wore a strange blend of expressions—the cringing of the serf and the pitiless daring of the Cossack.

"A man's been following me! He's outside the door now!" gasped the girl, who was trembling back against the portals as if she wished to find protection in the heavy might of the dark wood. "Don't let him in—you won't—let him in!"

"Send for the police at once," commanded Margery Seaton, with English serenity and Anglo-Saxon faith in the "Majesty of the Law."

"No, no—don't," gasped the other girl emphatically, but with fright mingling its note in her voice.

She crossed the room to the protesting nearness of that happy English girl who could not guess the fear she felt. "Please—" she said, "I don't want any fuss made."

The waiter walked out into the corridor beyond John Seaton's apartments in the Hotel de la Europe in St. Petersburg. In the hallway stood a man. He had the high cheek bones and reddish hair and beard of the Kurd. His bearing was cold and of a machine-like efficiency. In his furred coat and leather leggings there was a touch of officialism—the military perhaps. A quick look of recognition passed between him and the waiter—and then the servant came in and closed the door gently—quietly—almost as if he were showing the white-faced girl who waited how a door should be closed.

"There is no one there, miss," he said respectfully to Margery Seaton. He smiled cynically and stood as does the well-trained servant who is waiting for orders—but his orders were not to come from the girl whose father was giving a tea that afternoon.

The girl called Marya breathed a sigh of relief.

"Ah! I am so glad.. He followed me for quite a distance. At first I didn't notice—then I felt I was being followed."

"When you have the experience you can feel the shadow behind," said the waiter with a look of insolence.

Marya looked at him a little fearfully. In Russia danger may lurk in any evil chance, as Marya Varenka knew bitterly well.

"You were not asked for your experience, waiter," Margery, thinking impatiently how much better servants were trained in her own country.

"Pardon, miss!" said the man, and turned to busy himself with his duties.

"Didn't you turn and stare at him, Marya? In England—even if a man were to follow a girl, she'd make him pretty uncomfortable. Didn't you do anything, dear?"

"No! I was afraid! When I felt him coming closer I simply ran, but he caught up with me and followed me so long."

The waiter came closer. "Into the hotel—past the porter at the entrance and you did not ask for the—police?" He watched the girl keenly.

"Waiter!" commanded the English girl.

"Pardon, miss—I felt interested."

Marya Varenka spoke to him with no hostility or rancour; she showed only a sad impassivity such as Margery Seaton had never before known in the tones of her young Russian teacher.

"Don't speak of it in the hotel, please; they'd imagine all sorts of things and it would be very embarrassing for me."

"Certainly, miss. As you wish." And with a final glance of curiosity that amounted almost to suspicion, the waiter left the room.

And now the two girls met on a basis of friendly equality that is not always found between teacher and pupil. When John Seaton brought his motherless daughter to visit in St. Petersburg the girl had felt the necessity of mastering the strange guttural, consonant-riddled language of the country as quickly as possible, and that the future wife of Count Mikolai Rostov should learn the native tongue with all dispatch, that energetic young nobleman had put all his energies to finding for Margery a companion, who spoke both English and the language of the Czar. Marya Varenka had appeared with a letter from the Princess Mirskaya, and this recommendation had satisfied Margery's father and her husband to be. But Margery's honest little heart had soon told her that here was no mere teacher—but a very dear friend. And now that friend was in serious trouble—of that Margery felt sure, though indeed nothing had happened; but when the door had slammed five minutes before Margery Seaton sensed a new and evil influence coming into her life. Danger must exude an effluvium that pollutes the air before she herself comes to claim her victim.

"I never thought of stopping for anything; I didn't do your errands," said teacher to pupil, with the friendly smile of girl to girl. "I only thought of getting here as quickly as I could."

A LESSON IN RUSSIAN

"It's all my fault asking you to go out. In future I shall go with you."

"How are you getting on with your lessen?" asked "teacher" with a crown of pretty seriousness.

"I've been studying very hard. I've been looking for a word to express—what would you call someone you were very fond of?"

Margery's fears were returning—for it seemed to her that there was a sound of some one stirring steathily in the corridor. With her eyes on the door, she answered mechanically, "Dushenka." Then her crossed quickly to the door, opened it and looked out into an empty corridor. "Excuse me. I thought I heard some one at the door." There was a tone of abject terror, controlled, yet potent, in her voice; whatever the sympathetic understanding between these two daughters of widely separate countries, the English girl could not guess the measure of fear that clutched at Marya Varenka's heart.

"You silly girl. You're quite safe now—that man can't come in here," said Margery, with the English idea that a castle is a home.

No Russian girl could share her belief. In Russia the Czar is called "He who commands in all," and to interpret his commands with sufficient heartlessness there is the great "Okrana," the society of secret police, who enter where they will and do as they wish with the unfortunates who have fallen under displeasure or suspicion. So Margery Seaton looked her pretty yellow head and threw her challenge in the teeth of that which makes Russian civilization no civilization, but a barbarous thing of blood and horror instead.

"If he came in here, I'd soon send him about his business," said she.

With an apparent effort to think about something else, Marya came to her and sank down on the great settee. "What were you asking me?" she said.

"What would you call some one you were very fond of?"

"Dushenka," smiled Marya.

"'Dushenka.' What does that mean?"

"Dear heart."

"Oh, something stronger than that," pouted Margery.

"Well, if you loved him very much, you might say 'Galubchick.'"

"'Galubchick.'" Margery twisted her pretty face into a parody of itself while she struggled with the harsh consonants. "I don't like the sound of it."

"You mustn't make a face like that. Say it sweetly. Galubchick. It means 'darling.'"

"Galubchick, Galubchick. Oh, Marya, I shall never be able to speak Russian as well as you do English. You are so clever."

"It isn't cleverness. I learnt it when I was a child. My parents lived two years in London, Miss Seaton—and then they came back—here." There was an indescribably dreary tone in Marya's voice as she finished that sentence.

"Please don't call me Miss Seaton, you dear thing. We're pals—call me Margery."

A GOOD WORD

"Pals—I love that English word—it means so much. Thank you, Margery."

Marya had slipped out of her simple little sealskin hat and the jacket that buttoned to her throat, and as the two girls sat together on the couch they were clear types of the lands that had produced them. Margery was a slender English lily in the Nile green of her soft chiffon frock. Her hair was gold and vibrant with life. Dark, fearless eyes irradiated the clear pink of her healthy English, lis-of-Mist coloring. Her figure was tall and gracefully slender with that sapling straightness that seems a heritage to all lands and peoples who have felt the sweep of the Norman conqueror. With patrician sureness of herself Margery Seaton faced a world that was hers to conquer.

And Marya Varenka looked from beneath pensive brow at a world that was always threatening to conquer her. That was the keynote of the difference between the two girls. Where Margery challenged life, Marya sought to placate it.

The Russian girl wore a blouse of her own country and deeply tunicked Russian skirt. At her throat was a little collar of batiste daintily embroidered—and some of the Russian love for color appeared in the blended purple and wisteria and plum embroideries of her cloth girdle. In the very soft plum color of her simple dress there was the suggestion of a nature that had learned the wisdom of a self-effacement. Shadowy dark hair swept across her forehead and her eyes burned with a steadfast light that is the heritage of God-fearing peoples. Her skin was softly touched with olive and its lips and cheek there was the color of warm blood. Her figure had the seductive softness of rounded youth. She suggested the Orient brought to meet Margery's Northern fairness. She spoke again with a certain fatalistic acceptance of whatever chance brought to her of good or ill.

"How good you and Mr. Seaton are to me. How kind!"

"Oh, nonsense," said the brisker tone of Margery. "I want you to come and live with us."

What About That Bathing Suit?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IN a few days the real swimming season will be here. With every girl reader of this column I want to have a talk about HER bathing suit.

Perhaps you already have it, are making it, or thinking of buying it. If you have it, try it on and study it—from the standpoint of modesty and refinement.

Most of us go in swimming at more or less public beaches, and are open to the gaze of certain idle pleasure seekers who never go in swimming—they don't want to—or for some other reason.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Many of you have younger sisters. Nearly every girl in her heart hopes some day to be married and have daughters. Let each girl ask herself:

"Is this the kind of a suit I should like my sister, or my daughter to wear?"

There is nothing so charming as a pretty girl in her water clothes. But her apparel must be the right kind —not too extreme in style, not too short in length, nor too gaudy as to color. A black or blue suit with a little of white in the trimming, black stockings, trim bathing shoes, a plain rubber cap, and a suit a trifle below the knees and not too low in the neck, with very short shoulder sleeves—not straps—make as modest and becoming an outfit as you could wish.

Swimming is a most healthful exercise when not carried to extremes. This means not lying around on a sunny beach all day, but a good swim in the ocean, a good run or ball exercise afterward, and perhaps a rest of an hour or so on the sand, and then into your clothes.

WHAT IT MEANS

The bathing suit is not meant to give you freedom of manner. It does not mean that when you put it on you are to drop the things which make you charming and attractive. Perhaps, unconsciously, a girl forgets in having a good time that she is an example for some other girl, younger, who is watching her, and so the little seed of immodesty and freedom of manner is sown.

It is good to get off the everyday clothes and into the swimming suit, but that does not mean the dropping of your womanly qualities.

If you swim or frolic in the water do it thoroughly, but don't make it a beach parade.

CHAPTER ONE

A Startling Resemblance

SOME men are born foolish, some achieve foolishness, and some have foolishness thrust upon them. Andre Delveaux was one of the last group. Well born and with all his faculties about him, he was nevertheless easily led. He was not weak so much as he was indifferent. He preferred drifting with the current to hitching his wagon to a star. And into his life one morning came the realization that he must have done with foolishness, for foolishness had brought him at last to the end of his rope. He had run through his allowance and was $200, 000 in debt, and although it did not worry him too much, still it was unpleasant enough to remain longer on his mind than he would have thought necessary.

A VISITOR

"Deep in thought, eh?" said a voice from the door, and one of his all-night chums came into the room ready for any new racket that might occur to them to carry into practice. It was to such men as these that Andre owed his spendthrift qualities, men who had plenty of money and used it to thoroughly enjoy life without a thought of the consequences.

"Come on down to the Metropole, there's an awfully jolly crowd down there and I have a new drink I want to introduce you to, warranted to drown any headache that ever was."

And Andre, only too willing to forget his present attack of conscience, hastily got up and followed his friend out into the street. It was a wonderful morning, and by the time the two friends reached the Metropole, the sunshine had dispelled any dark thoughts that might have lingered in Andre's mind. After all life was short and some way out of his difficulty would be sure to present itself.

In the Metropole the lights were all turned on; there wasn't a suspicion of the morning sunlight anywhere. Electric light flooded the small cosy tables and many elegantly attired women were lounging around the large room. At the next table two women were lazily sipping fruit punch. Andre had noticed one of them as he came in. She seemed very willing to become acquainted. Finally he rose and went over to the table.

"Perhaps you would not mind if we moved over here," he said ingratiatingly, as the woman looked up at him with wide dark eyes. And that was the beginning of Andre's friendship with Clarice Santelle, one of the most notorious adventuresses that Paris has ever known. Clarice had spied the man the instant he had entered the room. Not only his good looks had appealed to her, but a striking resemblance to her brother had impressed her as being almost remarkable. Perhaps she would be able to make this fact count in more ways than one, for Maurice was an unmitigated scoundrel, a man who had barely escaped the fingers of the law hundreds of times, and he could be relied upon to undertake any scheme that his clever sister Clarice might invent for their mutual betterment.

A MAD INFATUATION

Andre continued to see Clarice every day, and she soon grew used to running in and out of his apartment as if it had been her own. For a time Andre was madly infatuated with the woman, a certain air of freedom about her attracted him, and her physical charms were many, although she was no longer as young as she once had been. They went downtown nearly every day for lunch, and one day when the time seemed about ripe and they were to lunch at the Metropole, Clarice sent a note to her brother, asking him to come to the Metropole at once to see his double.

Andre did not notice the slouchy individual with his cap pulled down over his face who lunged into the cafe a few minutes later, nor the look of absolute amusement that spread over his dark countenance. Clarice had certainly spoken the truth when she had written him the note and she flashed him a stealthy look of triumph while the unsuspicious Andre was sipping his coffee.

She knew that money in some way would be theirs as soon as she could think up a scheme of sufficient importance. Andre she had already sized up as a big fool willing to spend money and not very careful about picking his friends.

Asking for It

May Myrtle's admirer stammered out his devotion to May Myrtle's papa.

"Now, none of that, young man!" quote the harsh parent. "You just cut along!"

May Myrtle cried, the lover sighed, and went.

Then years later he returned to the place of his birth, breezy, bronzed and prosperous.

A special ball was given in his favor. Eagerly John William gazed o'er the lighted room to see if the one-time object of his affections was present. Suddenly he espied her. May Myrtle was now an imposing matron.

"Say, you remember me?" he said, stepping in front of her.

"Ah," she mused, "was it you or your brother who used to be an old sweetheart of mine?"

"Really," John William answered, "I don't know. Perhaps it was my father!"

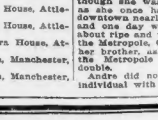
RESINOL CLEARS PIMPLY SKINS

An Easy Way to Get a Clear, Fresh and Velvety Complexion.

Pimples and blackheads disappear, red, rough, ugly complexions become clear, clear and velvety, and hair health and beauty are promoted by the regular use of Resinol Soap and an occasional application of Resinol Ointment. These soothing, healing preparations do their work easily, quickly and at little cost, even when the most expensive cosmetics and complicated "beauty treatments" fail.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment heal eczema, rashes, ringworm, psoriasis and other skin eruptions, stop itching instantly, and are most valuable for sores, burns, boils, piles, etc. Sold by all druggists. For trial free, write to Dept. 19-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

There is nothing "just like Resinol," so refuse worthless substitutes.



Promptly cleanse any fresh cut or wound with

and you absolutely prevent the ever-present danger of festering or serious blood poison that may follow the merest scratch. Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dioxogen today and you'll have no regrets.

WARNING: Look at the label if someone offers you a peroxide "just as good" as Dioxogen. You'll know the so-called "just as good" is impure and inferior because it requires the questionable drug acetanilid to preserve it. Dioxogen is so pure it needs no acetanilid to make it "keep." We guarantee it no matter how long it is kept.

To Put on Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight by one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's quite useless to say that this is the nature of the individual. It simply doesn't digest it all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They just absorb enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day don't make them plump. A single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

WILSON KILLS OUR COMMERCE, SAYS FORBES

By S. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

Greatness and littleness do not go hand in hand. America is great industrially. But the present Administration wants to force a return to littleness. The following extracts from an article I contributed to the current issue of Hearst's Magazine raise some serious reasons for hesitating before shackling commercial expansion:

The world is ruled today by commerce, not by armies. Armies and navies are but the creatures of commercial spoon-fed by it.

The nation whose trade most flourishes at home and abroad dominates the human race.

The nation whose industries languish and decay sinks into impotence.

* * *

No longer the caprice of kings and emperors but the power of commerce shapes history.

* * *

Prosperous trade means a multiplying population, strong, virile, well-fed, ambitious.

Commerce rules.

Wars today hinge on money almost as much as on men and guns.

The Rothschilds, it hath been said, dictate peace or war to Europe's rulers. That is an exaggeration. But the power of the purse is tremendous in international affairs, just as it is among individuals.

Did not Emperor Wilhelm, finding the morning's the stock of available gold in the Fatherland unpleasantly light when war was mooted over the recent Moroccan trouble, peremptorily order the bankers to add $35,000,000 of gold and $30,000,000 silver to the $50,000,000 war chest which, for so many years has been kept, well guarded, in the Spandau Tower?

And did ever any leading continental power at once begin a scramble for gold?

* * *

See how the principal European powers have caused the central banks to build up mountains of gold within the last two years:

	Nov., 1912.	Inc.	Dec.
France	$728,773	$636,435	$92,340
Russia	491,893	714,636	222,743
Germany	327,665	186,970	140,695
England	194,470	156,550	37,920
	666 omitted.

Gold is POWER. Gold can be won only by intelligent industry.

The nation whose industries are carried on with the greatest success will, other things being equal, become the wealthiest and the most powerful.

Armies do not maintain themselves. Battleships earn no freights. Big guns are unproductive. All these cost money, units of it—billions—need, every year, for armaments are constantly becoming more expensive and elaborate. So long, in fact, is the burden growing in Europe that, unless present-day tendencies are checked, it will be solely a matter of time when Britain, France, Germany and lesser Old World powers will be confronted with national bankruptcy.

Now, what lesson does all this convey to the United States?

Has not the time arrived for us to do a little national stocktaking, to take a reckoning of how our trade is faring, to consider very calmly whether we are doing everything possible to strengthen the foundations of the Republic?

The United States government latterly has not followed a policy calculated to build up our commerce, but has sought in divers ways and by various unwise legislative proposals to cripple and stunt our growth at home and disarm us in the battle for the markets of the world.

It behooves the administration to ask itself how far it should go in seeking to dismember the country's most efficient business organizations, how near joint railroad systems that could not be so effectively operated on a series of disjointed roads, to their separate operations and financial institutions the right to engage as directors the select brains in the land.

The anti-business proposals first embodied in the "Pujo Money" bills, and now crammed into one amazing, lynx-headed House bill, and being enacted into law exactly as drafted, throw the nation's business into chaos.

The administration's underlying purpose is to split up railroad finance into puny units, to annihilate large-scale operations. Only small, scrabbled politicians could be so shortsighted. It seeks to glorify littleness and to slay bigness. Instead of blessing the people with "new freedom," it would shackle them. It would cripple America's business impotent to compete in foreign fields. It would strive to destroy the efficiency of several of the vital new being used here for the development of our resources and the extension of our transportation facilities, today the envy of every other nation. It would curb the ambition of capital to accept some of the many invitations periodically received from other countries where large-scale enterprise is accounted no crime, but where stagnation and poverty are its absence. It would throw hundreds of thousands of workers—and a real million, even—into idleness and bring down wages everywhere.

Under all these circumstances is it not the imperative duty of the Administration to pause before it inflicts on the country a confiscatory or new anti-business law full of dire and destruction? No loss will be caused by delay. The loss entailed by haste, ill-considered or precipitate, can be foretell.

Remember, commerce is the life-blood of a nation. Choke the flow of commerce and national decay follows.

The United States has not won its envied position among the nations by looking on a small scale, but by doing things on a large scale. Success means growth. It means more to grow.

In the world battle for trade we need big, long-range, fourteen-inch guns, not old-fashioned, piffling ones.

Until the country recovers from all that it has already undergone, largely (though not wholly) as a result of the Administration's acts, it is the clear duty of Congress not to jam through undigested, crude, chaotic, anti-business laws calculated to wreck our commerce and all the land with hunger and discontent.

To hold our place among world powers we must encourage(not destroy) commerce.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened without much change and after a period of irregularity developed an upward movement. Most of the leaders were higher in early afternoon. Gains then included Canadian Pacific ½, Southern Pacific ⅝, Missouri Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅝, New Haven 1⅛, American Telephone 1, Steel ⅛, Amalgamated ⅛, Northern Pacific ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅜. Lehigh Valley had recovered part of its loss and was then off ⅝. Baltimore & Ohio was unchanged. The buoyancy of Reading and Union Pacific is measure due to reports from Washington that the examination of the books of the house of Morgan had not revealed anything that could have any untoward significance to the road.

The Boston market had opened quiet and was still so. New Haven had not risen here as in New York, being unhanged. Boston & Maine was up ¼. United Fruit was up a point, as was American Telephone. The United Shoe was about the strongest local issue, showing 1¼ gain. Copper had no movement of significance or interest.

MARKET OPENED STEADY.

The New York market was steady at the start and the undertone firm. Other night were of little significance, a number of leaders being unchanged. Most Americans were higher in London afternoon, where sentiment was still depressed over reports concerning the Mexican situation and the demand for gold on the continent.

The New York market was comparatively active during the first hour, but quiet in the afternoon. The morning's activity dull at midday. Traders had much to say about the consideration given organized labor in the Clayton bill for the regulation of trusts and Wall Street took a gloomy view of what it considered radicalism. As has been the case for some time, British influences were confined to crop prospects and expectations that when the Interstate Commerce Commission decides the Eastern freight rate question, it will be in favor of the roads.

DECLINE ATTRIBUTED TO RAID.

It was claimed that the decline yesterday was caused by a bear raid, the latter instigating foreign selling in the New York market and applying the pressure that could be utilized, with stocks in as small supply as at present, to test the underlying strength of the market. There was no disposition to continue the raid at the opening today. But uncertainty seemed to be a feature this morning. The list soon became irregular and the trading narrowed narrow. What was heard about the Mexican situation was not of a cheering character. New Haven was strengthened by the report that monthly reports of a number of subsidiaries would show increased earnings and smaller deficits. Steel was said to be in the hands of professionals. There was little sign of any public interest on the part of the public. Although there was more business doing than in the past few days, it was the rule for days it did not indicate participation by outsiders.

MIDDAY RANGE WAS HIGHER.

Although the midday market was a little higher, most stocks then showing small gains. Consolidated Gas was strong and a point higher, while Lehigh Valley, Steel, Reading and prominent rails. Trading in coppers was limited, but there did not relect the slump in copper warrants which has happened since that London market reopened. Sentiment appeared to the steel industry is also reported. Bond buying still a feature of the day. Consumers appear to be unwilling to stock, even with prices for products so much lower than a year ago.

HOME RULE TO BE A FACTOR.

According to W. R. Lawson, London financial correspondent for Hearst newspapers, home rule may again be a factor in the market of the British metropolis. He cables:

"Ulster is steadily hurtling toward an inevitable collision between Home Rulers, Unionists and Nationalists' Volunteers. Meanwhile the British public parades and street demonstrations, those which have been the prelude to reprisals. The government is also taking risks by moving troops and police in bulk from one part to the railways. Important transfers of Irish money are being made in London and Dublin, while the issue of many notes."

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

In commenting upon the irregularity of bank exchanges for May last Dun's Review says: "The total for the 26 leading cities of this country was $13,080,884,647, a decrease of 6.6 per cent. Among the 26 cities only 6 of the same 1913 period.

The London cooperative warrants market was weak this morning and by noon spot and futures were each off 2s.

The public debt of the United States increased $6,681,315 last month.

For April the output of thirty-five copper mines in this country approximated 105,000,000 pounds. This does not include production by most of the big copper companies. All of these are estimated to have produced about 15,000,000 pounds.

During May Phelps-Dodge production was 13,528,353 pounds of copper, a company record for the first five months and 12,998,119 in May a year ago.

How Can Men Be Made to LIKE THEIR WORK?

That Is the Earth's Problem. It Will Be Solved. And This Little Picture Illustrates It.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

The man who does not think deeply will look at the picture of the two little boys on this page, smile and pass on.

He will say to himself, "that is human nature through and through. The little boy who is asked to dig in his mother's garden hates to work and will not do it. And the other little boy, digging for worms, works happily—works hard and enjoys the work. FOR HE IS GOING FISHING."

The man who THINKS sees in this picture one of the great problems of the human race, the problem which Charles Fourier, the greatest philosopher thus far developed among human beings, understood, analyzed and hoped to solve.

We are put on this earth to work. Man must WORK to live. And the power that puts him here has compelled him TO WANT TO LIVE.

His strongest passion is the desire to live.

His second is the desire to perpetuate his species.

And his third intense passion is ambition, which means the desire for harder work, greater achievement.

Thus far men have worked nearly always against the grain, suffering misery under protest.

Is it possible to make labor ATTRACTIVE?

Is it possible to arrange matters so that the little boy who is asked to do useful work in his mother's garden will work as happily as that other little boy digging bait for the fish that he probably never will catch?

That is the great question.

Those who believe in the justice and wisdom of Divine Government believe that the question will be answered in the affirmative.

IT IS POSSIBLE TO MAKE LABOR ATTRACTIVE.

Men will work one day happily, gladly, not as slaves driven with the lash, but as free and willing workers, finding comfort and compensation for their efforts in the work that they do.

We see it already, in the baser, meaner exhibitions of human nature.

We see the despotic ruler with two sets of workers under him. In his fields, his ditches, his mines, his swamps he has men that work under the lash, THEY MUST WORK, HE FORCES THEM TO IT AND IT IS POSSIBLE TO FORCE THEM.

He has another set of workers, his SOLDIERS, those that cannot be forced to show courage, but that can be COAXED TO SHOW IT.

See how differently that ruler drives the labor in the ditch and the other slave in the uniform.

The slave in the ditch works in mud, silence and sorrow.

The other slave put to work as a professional murderer by the despotic ruler, eager for power and glory, works with epaulets, gold braid, brass buttons, decoration, a title, AND THE MUSIC LEADING HIM ON TO BATTLE.

Can you not see that when the people shall rule themselves, when they shall attach to honest, useful work the importance and honor that kings attach to the work of the fighters, THEN REAL WORK WILL BE MADE ATTRACTIVE, MUSIC WILL GUIDE THE WORKERS IN THE FIELD, AND HONOR AND GLORY AND DUTY WILL GO WITH A LABORER IN THE FUTURE AS WITH A DESPOT'S HIRED MURDERER IN THE PAST?

There is the big problem of our race, to make men happy BY MAKING INDUSTRY ATTRACTIVE, by making men want to work and enjoy their work.

Thus far life on this planet has been a desperate struggle to escape from that work to which in one form or another we are all condemned.

We have used cunning, brute force, the knife and the cannon TO MAKE OTHERS WORK FOR US.

That which we called civilization in Greece and Rome was brute force thinking leisurely while slaves did the work.

That which we call civilization in our day is superior cunning fastening certain human beings to certain machines of steel while the governing mind, THE OWNERS, "ENJOY" A MIXTURE OF IDLENESS AND ANXIETY.

How long will it take intelligence on this planet to realize that all work can be made happy and worth while in itself?

We see it beginning dimly in the education of children. We see that knowledge, once painful and driven into the child with the brutal rod, now is made pleasant.

We see children, fortunately situated, eager to return to their studies, enjoying the work that once every child hated.

When shall we see the grown children, the men and the women, the workers, the sad-eyed, tired, driven, harassed millions, working with happiness under attractive industry, WORKING AS THIS LITTLE BOY WORKS WHO DIGS THE BAIT WITH WHICH HE IS TO GO FISHING?

That is the big problem. Civilization will begin, and the real work of men will begin, when intelligence shall supply the answer of that question.

All that we are doing now is the building of a foundation.

We are like the tiny creatures that built the coral islands. We labor in the darkness below the water. Others will see the sunshine above the surface of this heavy, salty, gloomy ocean that we call our industrial system.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROBLEM

The name of this picture is "Work and Play." One little boy is told to work. He hates it. The other little boy THINKS he is playing; he is actually working, AND ENJOYS IT.

And in this picture you see one of the greatest problems that face the human race—the problem OF MAKING INDUSTRY ATTRACTIVE. (See Editorial)

AFTER THE WEDDING

AN ILLUSTRATED STORY OF THE WAY A HOME WAS MADE.

They would carefully count over what they could spend.

After Jennie's mother died, she and Tom were married and went to live in a little apartment in a part of town where rents are not too expensive. They were very happy and their married life seemed more like playing a game than anything else. Jennie didn't know much about housekeeping, in which she was very much like most of the young girls of the present day.

Jennie and Tom would carefully count over what they could spend for this and that, and tried to make their little income go as far as possible. Jennie would go to the market, which wasn't far from where they lived, and buy most of their things, because she could always get more for her money there. Then there was so much a week to pay on their furniture, which they had bought on the installment plan.

Then came the rent and other things, until there was a mighty wee bit left for any amusements. But they had each other and a cozy little home, and that was a whole heap.

When Tom came home from work one night he found Jennie in the midst of trying to make an apple pie for their supper. "Oh, Tom, the crust is just like a piece of leather, and I've got flour in my hair, eyes and all over the floor. I know I'll never be a housekeeper."

"There, there, girlie; let's eat the pie off the bill of fare for this time. You'll learn after a while," and he folded her into his arms, flour and all. H. C.

American Wives—Foreign Critics Like to Portray Them as Giddy Parasites, but Such a Viewpoint Is Asinine

By DOROTHY DIX

It is the fashion among foreigners who write books about this country to represent the American wife as a gay and giddy parasite, and the American husband as a poor, stupid, overworked drudge. The American wife is depicted as doing nothing but flittering from gayety to gayety and spending the money the husband makes, and the husband is painted as being so henpecked that he hasn't even enough spirit left to call his pocketbook his own.

According to these critics, the American wife has no affection for her husband, no consideration for him, she makes no return for all the money that he lavishes upon her. In a word, the American wife is represented as the champion confidence artist, and the American husband as the softest easy mark in the world, and this picture has been printed so often that not only all foreigners but many of our own country people are beginning to believe that it is a real portrait of the American husband and wife.

But I deny emphatically that it is true, or that the American husband does more for his wife than she does for him. It seems to me that in the give-and-take of matrimony, nowhere do husbands and wives come nearer to breaking even than in this country.

It may be true the American husband gives his wife more money, according to his means, to spend than do the men of other nations. Certainly it is true that with the solitary exception of the French an American woman can make more show on one dollar than an English or German or Italian woman can on five.

But if the American man gives his wife money he demands that she get results with that money. It is the custom of the country for a wife to be her husband's show window, the visible barometer of his fortune that all the world may see. Unconsciously we all estimate an American man's financial ability by his wife's looks. If she is smartly dressed we conclude that her husband is prospering. If she is shabby and dowdy, we infer that her husband is not one of those who know how to get along.

Many American women would prefer to dress simpler, wear fewer jewels and less expensive hats, and give the money thus saved to her poor old mother, or some needy relative, but her husband will not permit her. She's his walking advertisement of good business and equal to credit in the bank.

If the American woman belongs to more clubs, and goes to more teas and lunches than the women in other nations—is less tied down by her domestic duties—it is not because these duties are neglected, but simply because she is a better manager.

There are no homes in the world more cleanly, so sanitary or better managed than the American homes, and, in spite of all that is said to the contrary, there are no homes in which the average of cooking is better.

Abroad a woman is either a great lady of society or a housekeeper, and her husband accepts her on one or the other plane, and lets the other go. The American man expects his wife to equally ornament the parlor and the kitchen. A middle class Englishman does not expect his wife to be anything but the mother of his children and a frugal housekeeper. The middle class Frenchman expects his wife to be his business partner, the German is satisfied if his wife observes the three K's that the Kaiser set down as the proper spheres of a woman's activities.

But the American man expects his wife to be a thrifty housekeeper, a good mother, a business partner, and a fascinator besides. And the wonder of it is that he so often gets a woman who measures up to all these contradictory specifications.

American men are generous to women about money, but they require women to earn what they get by entertaining them. The American man doesn't know it, but he's the grand Pasha of society, and he expects every woman he meets to figuratively dance before him and amuse him.

In other countries men try to please and entertain women. In this country women make all the social running. It is women who talk their heads off trying to divert bored looking men and win a smile from them. It is women who thrash their brains trying to discover topics in which men are interested, for it never does occure to an American man to try to talk to a woman on any topic in which she is interested. Look where you will at any couple, and you will see that it is the woman who is pumping up the vivacity and animation. Never the man. He feels that he is doing all that is expected of him if he suffers himself to be amused.

Also the American husband, alone of all men, depends upon his wife to make and keep his position in society. She has to do all the social climbing. She has to fix the social status of the family. She has to rear the children, alone and unaided.

She has to make the home, for the American man considers that he has done his full duty by his wife and children when he has paid the bills. All the balance is up to the woman of the family.

So, if it is true that the American man does much for his wife, it is equally true that his wife does much for him. No matter what is said to the contrary, the American husband and wife give a pretty good example of team work.
